THE RUSSIANS REPORT GEN. KUROKI KILLED

Said to Have Been Hit by Splinter of a Shell.

Body Shipped to Japan---Baltic Fleet is Still on the Way---Member North Sea Board Named.

PORT ARTHUR BLOCKADE EXTENDS 30 MILES

Moscow, Nov. 14.—Nemirovich, Danchenko, the Russian war correspondent of the Associated Press, telegraphing from Mukden, says the reports of the death of Gen. Kuroki are confirmed. According to his version, a splinter of a shell struck Kuroki, tearing out a portion of his throat and abdomen. He died October 4, at Liao Yang and his body was sent to Japan.

"Alarming news has been received from Port Arthur," says Danchenko, "but the absence of reports during the last few days makes it evident that the movement of one of the other Russian armies will be dependent upon the course of events there."

"Nov. 11 scouts on our right flank attempted to pierce the line of Japanese fortifications, but were met with a stubborn resistance, and, finding the enemy strongly reinforced, retired."

Rome, Nov. 14.—At the Russian embassy here the belief is expressed that the Russian second Pacific squadron will go from Suez direct to Jutland.

Sir Anthony Appointed.
London, Nov. 14.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Vice Admiral Sir Lewis Anthony Beaumont has been appointed British representative on the North Sea commission to inquire into the firing on the British trawlers by the Russian Baltic squadron.

The Baltic Fleet.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—Admiral Rodjestvensky's squadron had a good voyage from Tangier to Dakar, where it is now coaling from German colliers. The other portion of the fleet is still repairing at Sulu Bay, and elaborate precautions are being taken for the safety of the further section about to sail from the Baltic.

Blockade Extends Thirty Miles.
London, Nov. 14.—The Telegraph's Chefoo correspondent says that the Japanese blockade of Port Arthur extends thirty miles seaward.

Troops Become Active.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—Dispatches from the front state that Field Marshal Oyama has received heavy reinforcements from New Chwang. The troops are showing activity on the right flank, as if contemplating a turning movement. General Kuropatkin has fortified his position along the Shalke river and prepared to accept battle.

SEACOAST PLANT UNDER THE HAMMER

The Globe Bank Bought it in for $23,075.

Concern Was a Failure From the Start—Was Never Run.

BANK HELD $14,000 IN BONDS

Master Commissioner Cecil Reed this morning sold the property of the Seacoast Mineral Co., in Mechanicsburg.

The property was ordered sold because of an action brought by the Globe Bank and Trust Co., trustee, which held $14,000 in mortgage bonds, to force the sale. The property was sold in two pieces. The price the Mergenthaler Horton Basket factory is on, brought $12,050 and the property the Seacoast is on, brought $11,025. Both pieces were bought by Attorney D. H. Hughes for the Globe Bank and Trust Co.

The property had been in litigation practically ever since it was built. L. C. Garrett of New York, was the promoter, and the project was a failure. The plant was never run. It was built for "separating" fluor spar, something that no one has ever succeeded in doing in a satisfactory manner. The building is one of the largest in this section. It is said that the process proposed to be used in separating the rich metals in spar would have made a fortune for those who succeeded in it, considering the unlimited beds of ore in this section of the country, but it is also said that the process was a failure. At any rate the plant has never run, and now probably never will be.

It has not yet been decided by the purchasers of the property what will be done with it, but it is likely, from reports, that it will be for sale. The bank bought it in simply to save its debt.

SOCIETY MAN

Turns Burglar and is Arrested in Chicago.

His Father a Wealthy Stockholder in Standard Oil Co.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Charged with having robbed two telephone boxes and a saloon, Ambrose McGregor, said at one time to have been a society man, was looked up at the police station today. The prisoner is well educated and reputed to be the son of a wealthy stockholder in the Standard Oil Company.

For time he was head cashier at the Standard Oil Company's office at Whiting, Ind.

"DADDY" RYAN DEAD

POPULAR ELK OF LOUISVILLE DEAD.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 14.—Daddy William Ryan, one of the most widely known Masons and Elks and Odd Fellows in Kentucky, succumbed at 1:35 o'clock last night to the ravages of pneumonia, which attacked him last Monday. He was the oldest Elk in the state, it is claimed.

MRS. HORACE RIVERS DYING.
Mrs. Horace Rivers, wife of the well known physician, is very low and not expected to survive the night. She has been in a precarious condition for the past several days, and today her condition became such that all the family was summoned and are now at her bedside. Her many friends will regret to learn of her illness.

TO ATTEND FUNERAL.
Mr. J. M. Martin and wife left at noon for Louisville to attend the funeral of Mrs. Janie Glass, Mrs. Martin's aunt. Mrs. Glass died at Louisville last night shortly after 6 o'clock of rheumatism and the funeral will take place tomorrow.

CAIRO'S "CAPTAINS" GOING IN STYLE

Will Arrive on a Handsome Special Car Tonight.

Will Spend the Evening in Paducah at the Palmer House.

LOCAL DELEGATES GO TONIGHT

A party of distinguished Cairo citizens will arrive in Paducah this evening at 7:30 o'clock en route to Huntington, West Va., to attend the annual meeting of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association.

They will go to the Palmer house and be informally entertained by citizens of Paducah until time for the train to leave, at 1:40 a. m. The Paducah delegates will go to Huntington on the same train.

The Cairo crowd will occupy a private car handsomely decorated, and are going to get the convention for next year for Cairo.

It is not known how many of the local delegates will go, but Capt. H. A. Petter, S. A. Fowler, Mark Cole, are certain to go, and Major J. H. Ashcraft and Councilman Young Taylor may also go.

As to what the delegates expect to accomplish, nothing definite is known. It is realized that it is going to be difficult to get anything for this part of the river, but it will always be a great deal more difficult to do it if hard work is not done. By constant pressure the river men on the lower Ohio expect in time, at least, to secure some sort of an appropriation for this part of the river.

Captain Aleck Craig, of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, is still in the city and will probably remain here for a week or ten days. He has decided not to attend the convention, but to spend several days getting members for the association.

The Cairo Citizen says of the delegation: Twenty of Cairo's "Captains of Industry" will go to Huntington, W. Va., next week to let the people of the upper valley hear the re-echo of the cry "On to Cairo."

Twenty citizens representing the board of trade, the Merchants' league the city council and the press, will take the invitation to the Huntington meeting to come to Cairo in 1905 with their meeting.

The Cairo party will leave Monday evening at 5:15 o'clock in a specially chartered Pullman sleeping car over the Paducah line of the Illinois Central railroad. The car will lay over at Paducah until 2 a. m. and will reach Huntington at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon over the Chesapeake and Ohio from Louisville.

In the party will be the following: From the board of trade: George Parsons, J. S. Aisthorpe, James H. Galligan, L. P. Parker, P. C. Barclay.

From the Merchants' league: John A. Miller, C. R. Stuart, Charles Feuchter, Jr., Daniel Hartman, Egbert A. Smith.

From the city council: Mayor Claude Winter, Aldermen C. V. Neff, W. P. June, William Magner, James Meehan, James H. Mulcahy. Besides these, Mr. Parsons, who is one of the vice presidents of the association, has appointed P. H. Smyth, of the weather bureau, Capt. W. M. Williams, of the Mobile and Ohio, Captain H. F. Potter, of the Argus, H. S. Candee, of the Bulletin, John C. Fisher, of the Citizen, E. E. Ellis, of the Telegram, and John H. Jones, of the Illinois Central railroad.

Sugar Goes Up Some More.

There has been another advance of ten cents on the hundred pounds of sugar by the wholesale to the retail houses. The total advances since the first some days ago now amounts to about 50 cents on the hundred, and the indications are that it will go still higher, and the southern planters will reap a rich harvest.

About the best example of a work of supererogation is teaching a girl baby to talk.

MANY OFFICIALS COMING TONIGHT

Inspection Party Arrives Over the I. C.

Will Spend the Night in Paducah and go East in the Morning.

WILL REMAIN ON TRAIN

The inspection train, carrying big I. C. officials over the system, will reach Paducah tonight and about 6 o'clock from Grenada, Miss., and will remain in Paducah over night, starting out of Paducah at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning and inspecting east to Louisville instead of first going to Louisville and inspecting south from that city.

The original intention of the officials was to go to Louisville tonight and start out of there but as no time could be gained, it was thought best to lay over here. This will be the first time such a large number of big officials have remained in Paducah over night. They will remain on their cars and take supper on the train, it is understood.

The officials wherever they go have many dozens of telegrams to send over the system, and an additional operator will tomorrow be installed at Princeton to handle the extra business the officials will make.

The local officials are preparing for the reception of the inspectors and will have the local terminals and buildings in the best possible condition.

The train will be handled by Paducah district crews as far as Central City where it will then go under the jurisdiction of the Louisville district officials.

Among those expected to be in the party are: W. J. Harahan, general manager; I. G. Rawn, assistant general manager; H. U. Wallace, chief engineer; M. Gilles, third vice president and general superintendent of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railway; H. McCourt, assistant general superintendent of the Illinois Central; E. T. Horn, superintendent of the Memphis division of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley; J. J. Flynn, superintendent of New Orleans division of the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley; W. S. King, and a number of other prominent officials, including roadmasters, supervisors, etc.

A REVISION

IS PREDICTED BY CONGRESSMAN BABCOCK, OF WISCONSIN.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Congressman Babcock, of Wisconsin, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, has declared for tariff revision, and predicts that President Roosevelt will call an extra session of Congress after March 4 to revise the tariff schedules.

Prominent Guests.

Hon. James A. Rose, secretary of state of Illinois, and Major J. B. R. Van Cleave and wife, of Springfield, Ill., were yesterday and today guests of Mrs. James P. Smith, daughter of Colonel Rose. The latter left today for Springfield and Major Van Cleave and wife leave this evening for St. Louis. Col. Rose has just been elected secretary of state for another four years.

—Mrs. Albert Warner of Massac, died yesterday and was buried today. She died of inflammation of the bowels.

LAW SEEMS TO BE BADLY WANTED MAN

Alleged for Years to Have Made a Living by Forgery.

Has Been Identified as Man Wanted in a Number of Kentucky Cities.

HAS CHOPPED OFF MOUSTACHE

A good catch was made here last week when H. B. Law, alias several other things, was arrested at the New Richmond Hotel on a charge of forgery committed at Dawson, Ky. It is believed that Law, who was taken to Madisonville by Capt. Joe Woods and lodged in jail there, is the man who for several years has been cashing bogus checks on D. A. White & Co., of Cincinnati. A Cincinnati dispatch says:

The arrest today, according to a dispatch, of H. B. Law, alias M. J. Fautner, at Dawson, Ky., on a forgery charge, officers of the D. A. White company, wholesale grocers of East Second street, believe will stop the flood of forged paper which somebody has been getting cashed in the name of that firm for years. Law is Fautner, at Dawson, Ky., on a forgery charge, officers of the D. A. White company, wholesale grocers of East Second street, believe will stop the flood of forged paper which somebody has been getting cashed in the name of that firm for years. Law is Fautner, at Dawson, Ky., on a forgery charge, officers of the D. A. White company, wholesale grocers of East Second street, believe will stop the flood of forged paper which somebody has been getting cashed in the name of that firm for years.

"So many forged checks have come to Cincinnati banks bearing our firm name that they are looked upon as a joke," said a representative of the company today. Sometimes they come two and three a week and then would cease for a month or two. They come from all points of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Evidence enough is piling up against Law to send him to the penitentiary for a good many years. A Madisonville dispatch says of him:

"V. B. Nuckels, of Guthrie; C. H. Adams, of Elkton, and C. M. Dickey, of Corydon, all liveries, appeared here today and identified H. B. Laws, confined in jail here as the man who had fleeced each of them out of $50 by having them cash checks on a Cincinnati grocery house. Laws was arrested in Paducah on a charge of forging a check at Dawson. It is supposed that he had worked in many towns in this section. Letters are pouring in to County Judge Bradley concerning him. Since being locked up, Laws has sawed his mustache off with the blade of a knife, to all visitors he turns a blank face, and still denies his guilt. It is expected fully a dozen charges will be brought against him before he comes to trial here."

The police here were convinced that Law was guilty as soon as they arrested him. In his valise were found several "decoy" letters. They purported to be from the Cincinnati house, complimenting him on his good work, quoting prices to him and adding that they had enclosed a "certified check for $50." There five or six of these, and they were all alike, and were similar to many letters used in many places to show to intended victims before getting a check cashed.

Chief of Police Collins has a letter from the Cincinnati firm stating that Law or somebody who used his methods, had been cashing bogus checks on their house for four years.

Col. Bud Dale, of the New Richmond, is certain that Law was getting ready to cash one of the bogus checks on him when pulled.

WOMAN FREE.

King Pardons Her for the Murder of Her Husband.

Madrid, Nov. 14.—King Alfonso has pardoned Jane Surez, a young cigarette maker, who is serving a sentence of ten years for the murder of her husband, Thomas Houghton, an American, during the Spanish-American war. The woman claimed she committed the crime while actuated by a feeling of patriotism.

GALE PLAYS HAVOC IN EASTERN CITIES

All Wires Were Blown Down by Heavy Wind.

Schooner Driven Ashore and Several Men Believed to be Lost.

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES SUFFER GREAT LOSS

Woods Hole, Mass., Nov. 14.—The two-masted schooner Earclarius, Capt. Nason, of Rockland, Me., went ashore in the northeast gale shortly before dark last night about three-fourths of a mile west of Tarpaulin Cove, on the Island of Naushen.

At sunset the seas were breaking over the craft, masthead high. No trace of the crew has been found. The vessel is in a particularly exposed condition and the chances of her being saved are slight.

Keeper Carson of the Tarpaulin Cove Lighthouse and a man named Robinson, one of the keepers of the Forbes Estate, saw the schooner when she struck. It was just before dark and a terrific gale was blowing. The schooner tacked and tried to work into the cove for anchorage, but the wind bore her off, and as she swung away she struck a ledge of rock no more than 100 yards from the lighthouse. Carson and Robinson were unable to render any assistance to the men on board the schooner.

The schooner numbered four men and all were plainly seen when the vessel struck but darkness set in almost immediately and nothing more was seen of the men of the vessel.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 14.—This city suffered from the heaviest gale of the year yesterday.

From every section of the city and surrounding country come reports of trees blown down, telegraph and telephone wires swept from their supports, and panes of glass shattered by the heavy wind. The telegraph connection with the east is entirely cut off.

Worst in 17 Years.

New York, Nov. 14.—Not since 1887 has communications between New York and the balance of the country been in such a condition of collapse as exists today. Barring the operation of a few telephone wires to Baltimore and Philadelphia, the wire service is completely knocked out by Sunday's terrific storm. The damage to wires is the most serious the telegraph companies have suffered in many years.

worked on several other roads as brakeman and conductor and at one time was yard master in Tipton, Ind., on the L. E. and W. road. He is a brother of Mr. R. S. Barriek, who was for some time yardmaster for the I. C. here.

The changes will take place tomorrow, it is understood.

The action of the higher officials will come as a pleasant surprise as no one suspected they were contemplated. Mr. Scheuing made a trip about one week ago over the Evansville district to look it over and become familiar with it.

It is stated that Mr. Dill will be transferred to some other division or he probably will go to another road.

It was announced this morning that no changes would be made in the local office except possibly Mr. Scheuing will take Mr. Qualls, his stenographer, to Evansville with him.

That the business on the Paducah district of the I. C. is rapidly increasing can not be disputed, and is evidenced by the creation of two new offices in Paducah, that of assistant trainmaster and of chief clerk to Chief Dispatcher Neil.

The business on the Louisville division alone last month equalled that of the Chicago division in the handling of trains and business. At several times nearly 100 trains were handled daily over the division.

The removal of the dispatching offices to Broadway so that the officials might work to a better advantage was another evidence that the road recognized the kind of stuff men had to be made out of to handle the business of the district, and was willing to aid them by adding every convenience to their facilities.

AN AMBUSH

Forty-Eight Americans Reported Killed.

Another Treacherous Attack on the Isle of Samar.

Manila, Nov. 14.—Newspapers received here that nine scouts, thirty-eight cavalry and an American attached to the hospital corps were killed in an ambush on the east coast of Samar.

POPULAR OFFICIAL GETS PROMOTION

Trainmaster Scheuing Made Assistant Superintendent.

Goes to Evansville and Mr. L. E. McCabe Succeeds Him as Trainmaster Here.

CHANGE EFFECTIVE TOMORROW

It is officially announced today that Mr. Henry J. Scheuing, the popular trainmaster of the Paducah district of the I. C., will tomorrow go to Evansville to succeed Mr. H. R. Dill as assistant superintendent, in charge of the Evansville district of the road.

This promotion for Mr. Scheuing will come as a surprise to his many friends but it is a deserved one and shows the appreciation the road holds for its valued employees.

This change will necessitate several others, one being the creation of a new office for the Paducah district, that of assistant trainmaster. The business on this district has become such that it requires the attention of two men and the road exhibited no hesitancy in creating the office when it saw this.

Mr. L. E. McCabe, traveling chief dispatcher of the I. C., has been appointed to succeed Mr. Scheuing here as trainmaster, and Mr. W. P. Barriek, a freight conductor, has been made his assistant. It is not known who will succeed Mr. McCabe, but it is tipped that a man on this district will get the position.

The change made in the position of Mr. McCabe comes as a promotion and a deserved one. Mr. McCabe has been a dispatcher for many years and by hard and energetic work, worked his way up until he was made traveling chief dispatcher. He had been on this district looking after the block system, and learned the division so readily and assisted in handling the trains with such rapidity that the officials considered him the man to succeed Mr. Scheuing.

Mr. Barriek is a freight conductor who went to work on the Ohio river road as a water boy, then

NAGGING PAINS

Newport News, Va., July 22, 1903.
Last summer while recovering from illness of fever, I had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism in the knees, from which I was unable to leave my room for several months. I was treated by two doctors and also tried different kinds of liniments and medicines which seemed to relieve me from pain for awhile, but at the same time I was not any nearer getting well. One day while reading a paper I saw an advertisement of S. S. S. for Rheumatism. I decided to give it a trial, which I did at once. After I had taken three bottles I felt a great deal better, and I still continued to take it regularly until I was entirely cured. I now feel better than for years, and I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to any one suffering from Rheumatism.
613 32d St. CHAS. E. GILDERSLER.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or some other acid poison in the blood, which when deposited in the muscles and joints, produce the sharp, cutting pains and the stiffness and soreness peculiar to this disease. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation, all irritating substances are neutralized and filtered out of the system, the blood is made pure and the general health is built up under the purifying and tonic effects of the vegetable remedy. Write for our special book on Rheumatism which is sent free. Our physicians will advise without charge all who will write us about their case.

IS AN HEIRESS.

A Touching Story of Misfortune Comes From Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 1.—Crippled since early childhood, and believing herself an orphan and dependent on the bounty of relatives, on whose charity she had lived for over thirty years, Miss Anna Siegfried, who sought refuge at the home for the friendless two months ago, is now happy in the knowledge that the mother whom she had believed dead is alive, and that she is the heiress of her father's estate, located on the Mississippi river near St. Louis. During all these years that neither mother nor daughter has derived any benefit from the estate the mother, Mrs. Bertha Boosky, has been confined in insane asylum or working as a servant at the poor farm at Edwardsville, Ill., and her daughter had been living with relatives in this city and Algoma, Wis. Both believed the other dead. The father, Wm. Siegfried, died in St. Louis thirty years ago.

An attorney has been retained and suit brought against the conservators of the estate and their bondsmen to recover the estate, and also the proceeds from its rental for the past thirty years. The suit will be heard in January, B. G. Waggoner of St. Louis, the attorney recommended by the probate court, having visited this city recently and secured proofs of the identity of Miss Siegfried.

Cleaning the Bath Room.

(From Harper's Bazaar.)

To clean the bathroom properly there should always be a bottle of household ammonia at hand, one of 40 per cent solution of formaldehyde or other good disinfectant, a couple of cloths, a long-handled brush, and a scrubbing brush. It is also well to have a can of concentrated lye or one of the preparations like it which will cut accumulations in waste pipes. The hand basin, tub and closet should be scoured out each morning, the drain pipes flushed twice a week with water to which has been added formaldehyde or the lye. The former is admirable for removing stains and deposits, but if these are very obstinate the formaldehyde must be left in the basin over night. The long-handled brush enables the maid to clean the closet basin satisfactorily. Ammonia on the cloth used in washing the tub and basin will remove greasy deposits. The nickel fittings and woodwork must be wiped off, the soap dishes and toothbrush racks washed. The vessels used in the bed rooms must be cleansed in the same manner, the water pitchers rinsed out and filled fresh every day, and the sloop jars and commodes scalded daily.

WORLD'S FAIR RATES.

Commencing September 18th and until November 30th, round trip tickets to St. Louis will be sold for $5.31, good returning 7 days after date of sale. These tickets will be honored only in coaches, and will not be good in sleeping cars.

CONSTIPATION.

Health is absolutely impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla., writes Feb. 12, 1902: "Having tried Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation." 50c bottle. Sold by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

Mr. Morgan's Scrapbook of Canterbury Tales.

J. Pierpont Morgan will today send to the Archbishop of Canterbury a unique souvenir of his recent visit to this side of the Atlantic. It consists of two volumes of clippings from daily newspapers recounting the movements of the archbishop from August 27, when he arrived in New York, to October 14, when he landed back in England. In addition to news reports there are editorial comments.

The books were ordered by Mr. Morgan the day before the archbishop reached New York. There are 87 pages in each volume, each page 14 by 15 inches in dimensions. There are 3,500 clippings, including many illustrations, no two clippings recounting the same event. The clippings were selected from 30,000 newspapers, and it took sixteen girls two months, working eight hours a day, to do the cutting and pasting.

The volumes are elegantly bound in a special grade of Russian levant, ornamented with gilt. The covers are lined with royal purple in silk moire—the bishop's colors. The inscription on the covers reads: "Newspaper Comments Commemorative of the Visit of His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury to the United States and Canada."

CURED CONSUMPTION.

Mrs. W. B. Evans, Clearwater, Kan., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said that he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him. That was six years ago. Since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

AMOUNTS ASKED FOR THE RIVERS

Annual Report on Rivers and Harbors Submitted.

Large Amounts are Asked for Work on Ohio River and Tributaries.

PAST YEAR'S EXPENDITURES

Washington, Nov. 14.—The annual report of the chief engineer, Gen. McKenize, was made public this afternoon. It is voluminous, for it contains the reports of all of the engineers in charge of public works throughout the United States, and as the report is based largely upon the contributions of the subordinate officers there is very little in it that has not been printed.

One of the new and interesting features is Gen. McKenize's recommendations for river and harbor improvements. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, he recommended the appropriation of $21,444,257, general, for rivers and harbors, and $8,443,396 for work under continuing contracts, also for examinations, surveys and contingencies, $300,000.

For continuing the work on the project at the falls of the Ohio at Louisville, $250,000 is asked. Other sums recommended for expenditure next year on important improvements along the Ohio river are as follows: For open channel work, $400,000, lock and dam No. 37, $150,000; for locks and dams, Nos. 2 to 7 inclusive, $1,500,000; for the movable dams between the Pennsylvania State Line and Cincinnati, Nos. 8, 11, 13, 18 and 19, $1,293,400.

The estimates for big projects along Kentucky rivers are: Big Sandy river, and Levisa and Tug forks, $368,000; Green river, above the mouth of Big Barren river, $5,000. All these sums are for expenditure in addition to balances on hand.

The total appropriation recommended for Mississippi river is $2,755,000. Other estimates are as follows:

Southwest Pass, Miss., $1,250,000; harbor at Sabine Pass, Tex., $300,000; Galveston harbor, Tex., $450,000; Galveston channel, Tex., $150,000; Galveston ship channel and Buffalo bayou, Tex., $200,000; Trinity river, Tex., $50,000; Arkansas Pass, Tex., $150,000; Red river, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Indian Territory, $150,000; Onachita and Black rivers, Arkansas and Louisiana, $189,954; Mississippi river, between Ohio and Missouri rivers, $650,000; Mississippi river, between Missouri river and St. Paul, Minn., $400,000; reservoirs at headwaters Mississippi river, between Brainerd and Grand Rapids, Mich., $200,000; Missouri river, $150,000; Osage river, Mo., $80,000; Chicago harbor, $295,000; Calumet river, Illinois and Indiana, $250,000; St. Mary's river, at the falls, Mich., $964,000; Hay lake and Neeshib channels, St. Mary's river, Mich., $500,000.

Improving harbor at Memphis, including Wolf river, $25,000; improving harbor at Natchez, Miss., and Vidalia, La., $200,000; rectification of Red and Atchafalaya rivers, Louisiana, $50,000; improving harbor at New Orleans, $300,000.

During the past year for general river and harbor work, $20,063,709.41 was spent; removing sunken vessels, $80,652.05; operating snag and dredge boats on the Mississippi, $25,090; removing obstructions in Mississippi river, $88,245.35; gauging waters lower Mississippi and tributaries, $7,083.61; maintenance South Pass channel, $65,964.08; examinations and surveys South Pass, $9,135.93; total, including five other items relating to other sections, $21,576,914.85. The estimates for the next fiscal year amount to $30,386,913.

The young man came in after supper feeling rather hilarious. He did not quiet down, but finally became so boisterous that he had to be taken out side to cool off. He was soon in again, however, and soon put out again.

It was not very late, and soon several of the guests in the hotel were surprised to see the exiled youth quietly going to bed in one of the hotel cars that stand in front of the hotel all night since the four blocks of Broadway nearest the river are cut off by the street reconstruction.

When they went to him he had removed his clothing and quietly lain down on the seat of the car to spend the night, and would no doubt have frozen to death had not some of the hotel people seen him. They aroused him and induced him to dress, and then placed him where he would in time get over his little celebration.

NEWS OF THE RIVERS.

Mr. Pay Lyon, of Eddyville, the well known river engineer, is in the city on a visit to friends.

Although the prevailing opinion in Pittsburg seems to be that the recent purchase of the property of the St. Louis and Mississippi Valley Transportation company by the River Coal Company, means that the latter is about to enter the grain trade of the lower Mississippi valley, this is not thought to be a fact by Louisville river men. It is understood that the company wanted the boats and barge of the company only because they were necessary to handle the business this company expects to transact during the winter. As soon as the stage increases the harbor at Pittsburg will be a lively scene. The following boats are lying at up-river points: Lashells landing: John A. Wood, Harvester and Rival. Morris landing, Boaz and Sam Brown. Georgetown, Jim Wood; Cluster Island, Coal City and Crescent; Steubenville, Sam Clark and Charles Jutte. Possum, Ironsides and James Morgan. Caranther bar, Ed Roberts and Pacific. Horner, Tom Dodsworth and Raymond Horner; Middleport: Finlay and Frank Gilmore. The Pittsburg and Cincinnati Packet line held its annual meeting Friday and elected all the officers and directors, as follows: James A. Henderson, president and general manager; T. S. Calhoun, vice president; G. W. C. Johnston, secretary-treasurer; A. J. Henderson, general freight and passenger agent; J. F. Ellison, general superintendent.

NEVER AGAIN

DID THE DOCTOR PUT ON THE "MICROBE PROTECTOR."

A small booklet lay on a local physician's desk advertising an adhesive plaster, and printed on the cover was a picture of three surgeons performing an operation. The cut showed how the plaster was used, but the thing to strike interest more than the view of the operation, was the bandage worn over the mouths of the surgeons.

"Here I have been practicing medicine and performing surgical operations for more than two score years," the doctor laughingly remarked, as he looked at the bandages about the doctor's head, "and have never taken up what I consider a fad. Nowadays you can't turn around but what you run into a microbe or some varmint in the air which you can't see, and this bandage business you see in this picture illustrates to what extremes people can go. Now this bandage is supposed to keep the breath of the surgeon off the wound to prevent microbes being breathed into the wound. That is all bosh and I remember one amusing incident which happened in Paducah while several physicians, I among them, were performing an operation.

"We had the patient under chloroform when one of our colleagues began to tie up his face, preparatory to cutting. We asked him what he was doing it for and he told us 'to avoid breathing any impurities into the wound, etc.' Well, I turned to my companions and laughingly remarked: 'Haden't we better send down and get a diving suit apiece before we get into this operation.' This served its purpose and I don't believe that doctor has taken up with a single new fad since."

KENTUCKY PRESS BOYS.

President Louis Landram, of the Kentucky Press Association has called a meeting of his executive committee, to be held at Seelbach's, in Louisville, Saturday, November 19. Jointly with the executive committee the president has notified the members of the special committee appointed on Revision of the Constitution to be present and prepared to present a draft of the work in hand. At the same time the subject of the midwinter meeting will be discussed and preparations made for an enjoyable session, which may terminate with an outing through the South and be, perhaps, extended to Cuba.

FIRED AT HIGHWAYMEN.

O. E. Evans, who lives beyond Rowlandtown on the Cairo road and is employed at Riegelsberger's, was stopped by three negroes Saturday night as he was going into his gate. They asked him how far it was to La Center and when he told them one ordered him to hold up his hands. Mr. Evans was prepared and drawing his pistol began shooting. Two of the negroes left their hats, but all three got away.

SOME ODD NAMES FOUND IN TOWNS IN KENTUCKY

Kentucky is said to hold the record of all states in the union for towns with odd and unusual names, and, judging from some of these names which were discovered by the stenographers at the Democratic state campaign headquarters during the past few weeks, this record seems to be well established and deserved, says the Courier-Journal. One of the stenographers, as she came to an unusual name, would write it down, and the resulting list was something that one seldom sees and would hardly be believed, yet the official gazetteer of the postoffice gives the names and is the authority cited. During the campaign letters were sent to persons in every one of the towns which are on the list.

Eden, which is in Butler county, should properly come first in the list of towns, and immediately after it would logically come Adam, which is in Lawrence county. Eve is in Green county, and is a promising place, although small. Cain's Store is in Pulaski, and this is the first mention of the way in which the first child born to woman earned his livelihood after the ejection from the garden. Abel, the second son born, is in Laurel county. So much for the beginning. Having gotten fairly started in the list, the following curious connection in names is to be noticed:

Happiness is peculiarly connected with some of the towns, at least as far as the names go, even if the connections do not go further. One ought certainly to be happy in Bliss, which is in Adair county, or in Joy, Livingston county, and one certainly would not be sad if he lived in Jolly, Daviess county. On the other hand, one would not derive much pleasure from existing in a town which travels under the name of Blood, Blood is in Calloway county, and is said to be an exceedingly peaceable city.

Caution, Clay county, may possibly be well named if that county's reputation that it was best to proceed circumspectly be correct. The inhabitants of Angel, Whitley county, should certainly have good dispositions as well as those who live in Halo, Logan county. Sweet, Bath county, is another town which ought to be productive of good living. In contrast with these comes Ice, Letcher county, and Snow, Clinton county. These two places are not in it with Summer Shade, which is in Metcalfe county, as that is a tolerably warm place. Pomp, in Morgan county, has its opposite in Poverty, which is in McLean county. The man who named Alone, in Metcalfe county, must have been tired and lonesome when he fixed this sad name to it.

Awe, in Lewis county, suggests a subdued feeling while Faith in We Lean county, and Hope, in Montgomery county, give one a sense of rest and confidence. If one does not get all one wants there, one can still go to Balm, in Fleming county, and there find relief. Cash, in Hardin county, and Coin, in Pulaski county, suggest wealth, although they are not towns in which capitalists reside. Coy, in Marshall county, and Cyclone, in Monroe county, reach the opposite extremes, while Jamboree, in Pike county, certainly suggests a hilarious time. The following are some of the other names which are out of the ordinary:

Alpha, Clinton county; Backbone, Elliott county; Bar, Henry county; Barefoot, Nicholas county; Bet, Carter county; Blaze, Morgan county; Bruin, Elliott county; Bud, Wayne county; Bug, Hickman county; Buzzard, Pulaski county; Bush, Laurel county; Choice, Clay county; Coal, Johnson county; Doorway, Owsley county; Firebrick, Lewis county; Sideview, Montgomery county; Fed, Floyd county; Freedom, Barren county; Stop, Grayson county, and Walt, Wayne county.

years ago, and was a bet of $50, made with a Broadway merchant, signed and witnessed, that the next republican nominee for president would be elected. At that time it was not known who it would be, and the merchant who has the republican end of it had no idea he would have such a walk-over.

The bright sayings of children are always interesting, and often remarkable. One Sunday recently Master Fowler Post, Captain Joe Fowler's little grandson went to Sunday school with a Parker button on each lapel. One of the gentlemen saw him and said:

"Fowler, I see you are a Parker man."

"Yes," proudly replied the little fellow, "ain't you?"

"Oh, no," rejoined the gentleman, "I'm for Swallow."

"Swallow?" repeated the other.

"Who's he, Roosevelt?"

"No, he's the prohibitionist," explained the man.

"Oh," echoed the boy, in evident disgust, "then he ain't anything, is he?"

Attorney Frank Lucas is a believer in the significance of dreams. He is an enthusiastic baseball fan, and used to be catcher in his home club down in Graves. Recently he dreamed he was in a hot game, taking them sizzling off the bat. Suddenly there was a foul tip, and it caught the attorney on the thumb and came near putting him out of business. He did not wake up, but in morning when he awoke and remembered the dream, he found to his surprise that his thumb was very sore in the exact place he dreamed the ball struck him. He does not know whether the dream caused the thumb to get sore, or the sore thumb caused the dream. He is certain of one thing, however, and that is the thumb was not sore when he retired.

"Am des de place wha yo' gits licensees?" asked a dark-skinned citizen as he approached the window in City Treasurer Dorian's office recently.

"No, not exactly," explained Treasurer Dorian, "but you do the most important part of it here—pay your money. Then you step across the hall over there to Capt. Henry Bailey, who will give you your money's worth, although he's a democrat. What kind of a license did you want?"

"I jes wants a mahhage license, sah."

"Well, we're just out of them, anyhow," responded Col. Dorian, who is something of a practical joker. "We had quite a rush last week, and have a car load on the way now, but they haven't got here yet."

"Yes, sah," said the darky, "I see in no hubby; it ain't ma first time; it'll be de thud time I dun been mahhied, sah."

"Oh, your third time, is it?" echoed Col. Dorian. "Well you ought to be able to get one at reduced rates. Now, I'll tell you what you do. You just go over to the court house and ask County Clerk Graham for a license. I understand his supply hasn't run out, and he will probably make you one for a reasonable amount, say about $2. Don't let him charge you more, though. First explain that it is your third venture, and that you ain't willing to pay very much this time for the privilege of getting into the matrimonial yoke again."

"Yas, sah," drawled the darky. "I'll tell 'im dat, boss, an' obligeed to you. Ef he tempts to chawge me ovah $2, I'll tell 'im 'naw, I'll jes' wait outweld day man rou' dah to de city hall gits a new stock."

And he started for the courthouse.

THE "SPIT BALL."

"Rip" Egan Claims It Was Mostly a Bluff.

There is plenty of wild cat talk now about changing baseball rules and doing something to give the batsmen more strength. The "spit ball" has been in the limelight recently and something appears about this ball every day.

"Rip" Egan, the Louisville pitcher, had a little fanning bee at Detroit the other day, and he declared that there is nothing to the ball any more in the American Association. He says that batsmen have solved it. Columbus fans will bear out his statement. Stricklett, the chief exponent of the ball, was not as effective as many other twirlers with a good team behind him. Columbus batsmen the second trip the Brewster made east were scared to death of the "spit ball." The score book shows where he was batted out of the box that afternoon, though, and Stricklett's "spit ball" was not any too effective the rest of the year.

Just a word on the "spit ball." It's the belief that batsmen often are afraid of a pitcher using this peculiar ball, and they go to the bat believing that they cannot hit, which often gives the pitcher an advantage to start with. Returning to wild cat and freak legislation the game is about right as it is, and fans like the close contests, say what they will to the contrary.

The final Minneapolis and St. Paul series at Columbus saw each game in doubt until the last man was out, and but few runs were made. The average attendance was larger than any time during the year. That shows whether close contests are appreciated or not. Let the foul strike rule be tackled if more batting is wanted. That will help solve it without freak legislation.

Music As a Remedy in Medicine.

(From the Medical Record.)

Following the reading of a paper on "Music as a Therapeutic Agent," by Dr. Francis S. Kennedy, before the Medical Society of the County of Kings, two methods of administration were demonstrated, one by the piano and the other by the voice, and an endeavor made by each method to illustrate the different impressions which should be conveyed to the listener. Just as a drug should be put up in a clean package, and as free from adulteration as possible, so music as a medicine should be as free from error of technique as possible. For this reason, in demonstrating the piano music, a mechanical piano player was used, so that no false tone should mar the harmony and effect.

The following examples were then rendered: As restful music, yet sufficiently stimulating to keep the mind alert, the Fifth Nocturne, Leybach, piano. As soothing, quieting music, an Irish lullaby, Needham, contralto. As physically stimulating music, "The Invitation to the Dance," Von Weber, piano. As mentally stimulating music, "One Spring Morning" (Goethe), Nevin, contralto. As reminiscent, memory refreshing music, fantasia from "Il Trovatore," Sydney Smith, piano.

"If the cares of life beset you, or fret you, we'll bet you a Sun want ad will get you—an artiodote."

BRIDGE PROPOSED OVER CUMBERLAND

DESIRED TO BUILD ONE AT CANTON, TRIGG COUNTY.

The Citizens Desire To Do Away With the Antiquated Ferry System.

STEPS SOON TO BE TAKEN

For several years past the question of erecting a free bridge across Cumberland river at Canton has been more or less discussed, but not until the past few weeks has the matter been taken hold of in a manner pointing to a success of the undertaking, says the Cadiz, Ky., Record. Some weeks ago a representative of a leading bridge company while in Cadiz made an estimate as to the cost at the instance of Judge Bingham and other officials and citizens of the county, and we understand a bridge 16 or 20 feet wide can be built at something like $20,000 or $25,000.

Esq. Creekmur and Esq. S. I. Spiceland have also taken hold of the matter with other citizens of the county, and we are informed that one of the bridge building companies is to send an engineer to go over the ground and submit estimates and specifications without cost to the county.

We see no reason why the plan should not be endorsed by every citizen of the county. For many years the people from between the rivers have borne a great hardship in paying ferriage in order to reach their county town. They have without a murmur contributed their proportionate part toward erecting bridges across streams in other portions of the county, and it would be nothing but fair and proper that they should be shown this consideration. Besides a free bridge would be a great public benefit, and people living in all parts of the county who more or less are compelled to cross the river in the transaction of their regular business, would find that the saving of ferriage would far more than pay their part of the tax necessary to bridge the river.

Then, too, as it would be a permanent and lasting improvement, and for the good of future generations, it could be arranged to pay for it in the future by issuing 4 per cent bonds to be paid in thirty years, and let a levy of 5 or 10 cents on the hundred dollars be made to redeem those bonds as was the case in the erection of the court house.

But like everything else, it will require effort and labor upon the part of our citizens to make the thing a success, and if properly managed the question can be submitted to the people at the next regular election, and within the next two years a structure can be erected that will be of untold benefit to the county and a lasting monument to the pride and enterprise of the present generation.

One Step to the Good.

The traveler stopped and looked up along the steep New Hampshire hillsides. It was a perfect day for garden work, but no day could be exactly desirable for work in a garden that tilted up into the air at an angle of sixty degrees, so that a plowhorse had to wear little stilts on his legs to keep him from falling over the fence into the road. And as the traveler watched and wondered, the plow, horse and driver came nearer.

"Poor man!" ejaculated the onlooker.

"Oh, I ain't so durned poor," retorted the son of the Granite state. And then he added in explanation: "I don't own the blame land."

CROP CONDITIONS

FIGURES ARE BASED ON PRELIMINARY RETURNS.

Corn, Buckwheat, Flaxseed, Potatoes and Tobacco Show Increase Over Last Year.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Preliminary returns to the chief of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture on the production of corn in 1904 indicate a total yield of about 2,453,000,000 bushels, or an average of 26.7 bushels an acre, as compared with an average of 25.5 bushels an acre as finally estimated in 1903; 26.8 in 1902, and a ten-year average of 24.2 bushels.

The general average as to quality is 86.2 per cent, as compared with 83.10 last year, 80.7 in 1902, and 73.7 in 1901.

It is estimated that about 4.6 per cent of the corn crop of 1903 was still in the hands of farmers on November 1, 1904, as compared with 5.2 per cent of the crop of 1902 in farmers' hands on November 1, 1903. 1.9 per cent of the corn crop of 1901 in farmers' hands on November 1, 1902, and 4.6 per cent of the crop of 1900 in farmers' hands on November 1, 1901.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of buckwheat is 18.9 bushels against an average yield of 17.7 in 1903, 18.1 bushels in 1902, and a ten-year average of 17.9 bushels. The average for quality is 91.3 per cent, against 91.4 last year, 88.1 in 1902 and 93.3 in 1901.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield of flaxseed is 10.2 bushels, as compared with a final estimate of 8.4 bushels per acre in 1903 and 7.8 bushels in 1902. The average as to quality is 92.0 per cent, as compared with 84.9 one year ago.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of potatoes is 110.4 bushels against an average yield of 84.7 in 1903, 96.00 bushels in 1902 and a ten-year average of 81.0 bushels. The average as to quality is 93.4 per cent, as compared with 86.4 per cent one year ago, 90.4 in 1902 and 78.4 in 1901.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of hay is 1.52 tons, against an average yield of 1.54 tons in 1903, 1.50 tons in 1902 and a ten-year average of 1.35 tons. The average as to quality is 92.7 per cent, against 91.3 one year ago, 85.7 in 1902 and 91.3 in 1901.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of tobacco is 819 pounds, as compared with the final estimate of 786.3 pounds in 1903, 793.3 pounds in 1902 and a six-year average of 730.7. The average as to quality is 89.5 per cent as compared with 85.9 one year ago.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of rough rice is 32.1 bushels, against an average yield of 32.7 bushels in 1903 and 27.3 bushels in 1902.

The report also includes fruits and various minor crops, which will be published in detail in the crop reports.

FAST SUMS.

That Go to the Railroads for Moving Crops.

The amount of money that will go to the railroads for moving the principal crops of the country grown during 1904 is estimated at $463,644,051. This estimate is the result of a careful compilation made by the traffic department of one of the largest railroad systems and submitted for the consideration of men who are influential in Wall street, and who own either a controlling or a substantial interest in many of the large railroads east and west.

The object of the compilation was to inform the railway magnates regarding the probable income of 1905 and the amount of equipment and power that will be necessary to transport the principal agricultural products of the present year.

The total crop valuation is estimated at $5,535,000,000, and if all of it is moved it is shown that the crops would fill 13,220,900 freight cars, which are now of an average capacity of thirty tons. It is also shown that the transportation tax on the whole amounts to about 8 per cent of the valuation.

Kentucky Some Day, Too!

All hail, Republican Missouri! It is no longer poor old Missouri, but a state that stands erect with its face to the light and marching in company with New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana. Missouri has cut loose from Bourbonism and political petrification. It has given its electoral vote to the Republican column, elected a legislature that is Republican on joint ballot and chosen Republican state

Missouri will now boom, just as the markets are booming, and the name of the United States is booming the world over. The great victory in this state was gained over the crookedness of one of the most powerful machines ever organized and one that held control for a third of a century. NEW SECRETARY-TREASURER

Mr. W. H. Bowman Begins His Work With Green Distilling Company.

Mr. W. H. Bowman, of Paducah, began his work here yesterday morning as secretary-treasurer of the Green River Distilling company. He comes to Owensboro with an extended business acquaintance and an experience in practical affairs that will make him very useful to this prosperous company. His leaving Paducah was generally regretted there and called out generous press notices of him. He is accompanied by his wife and two children and will make Owensboro his home.—Owensboro Messenger.

World's Fair Coincidences.

The diversity of the St. Louis exposition is thus dilated upon by the Evening Post:

On the "Pike" at St. Louis we see the Laplanders and the Eskimos "just as they are in their far-away homes in the frozen North," rubbing elbows with the inadequately clad natives of Dahomey and Surinam, but the most interesting of the contrasts which a universal exposition affords appears in the simultaneous meeting of the Association of Press Humorists and the Missouri Funeral Directors' Association. Whether it is a mere accident that these two bodies hit upon the same date, or a careful plan to keep an equable temperature at the fair in the frivolities as in other things, does not appear from the record. It is most fitting, in any case. Just as the restaurant keeper rejoices above all things when Mr. Jack Spratt and his good wife come to dine, knowing that he will be paid for a separate set of dishes for each one, so the diverse attractions of the fair, from fine specimens of stone cutting to roof gardens, should find many patrons in the week when grave and gay so amicably meet.

Another funny coincidence was when the Water works Association and the Brewers' convention met the same day, but not so funny as the fact that the Kentucky Press Association and the Gas Association held conventions the same day.

Forgive Us Our Pressups.

Polly, aged six, had heard her papa talking about the campaign and she hurried off to the nursery to tell her dolls about the time she stayed up to watch the election returns.

"An' it was jus' awful crowds and awful crowds and awful crowds," she said. "An' just mens and womens and more mens, all a-hollering like they was mad 'bout somethin'—or maybe it was glad; I don't know. Me an' my papa got mos' pushed to death and squeezed out of breath."

"An' I found out right down there in the street, my beautifuls, what the good Lord meant when He put that in His prayer for us we forgive those that press up against us."

THE NINTH DISTRICT.

The democratic election officers in one republican precinct of Fleming county "forgot" to sign the books, and the sheriff and other democratic commissioners threw out the vote, depriving Mr. Bennett, republican candidate for congress in the Ninth district of 60 plurality. In Carter county the same sort of tactics were adopted, and this is the way Kehoe, the democrat, claims to have been elected.

The democrats may be able to steal state, district, county and precinct offices with their majority on nearly every county election board in the state, but they can't steal a seat in congress, no matter how many votes they steal. All contests for seats in congress come up in congress, and the only way to defeat such methods as those reported in the Ninth district is to take the facts before congress and let congress do a little "throwing out."

Republicans in Kentucky do not desire or expect to get offices to which they are not elected, but they do want those they have won fairly.

If a member of the board of education may also be a member of the board of supervisors, he may likewise be a member of the council or the board of aldermen. If a man drawing a regular salary from the city as street inspector or street anything else can also draw a salary as a member of the board of supervisors, he can hold any other two offices. Before the acts of the board of supervisors to meet tomorrow are invalidated because of the alleged illegality of the members, the mayor had better look up the law.

The contractor who when told he would have to put good gravel on the streets retorted that "knew his business" will find that "business" is falling off. His pull, which has cost the taxpayers perhaps thousands of dollars and much inconvenience, is about a thing of the past. When the new members of the general council take their seats, it will be.

It doesn't pay to have careless or ignorant men holding office. A Mayfield candidate for constable is named Williams, but his name on the ballot was "Wilson," and he was defeated. He could not have qualified in all probability, had "Wilson" been elected, but he ascribes his defeat to the inexcusable mistake, and is very "sore."

OWNER OF MEDAL IS FOUND AT LAST

Capt. Durrett Located Through the Press.

Medal Awarded Him by Uncle Sam Was Found Near Grahamville.

HIS SON LIVES IN TEXAS

A story that reads almost like fiction is told by Colonel Bud Dale, proprietor of the New Richmond hotel. Several months ago while several small boys were playing about the school house near Grahamville, this county, one of them, Dallis Peyton, a nephew of Mr. Theodore Luttrell, picked up a curious piece of metal, circular in shape.

It was scraped and cleaned, and found to be a bronze medal issued by the government to one Captain Durrett, of the First West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry (Federal), a man unknown to anyone in this section. The boy turned the medal over to his uncle, with whom he lived, and Mr. Luttrell placed it in the hands of Mr. Wade Brown, then postmaster at Woodville, with a hope of finding the owner.

The medal was handsomely engraved, and was given for bravery under General Custer. Mr. Brown was unable to find any trace of the owner, but going to West Virginia on a visit some months ago he took it with him, and had it written up in the paper.

A short time ago, all the way from Taylor, Tex., came a letter from Mr. C. Mengel, of the Taylor National Bank, stating that he knew the family well. He had seen in some of the papers an account of the finding of the medal, and wrote here to let it be known that the owner was known. Mr. Luttrell then turned the medal over to Colonel Dale, and Colonel Dale sent it in a registered package to Mr. Mengel, who in turn sent it to a son of Captain Durrett, now a prominent man in Fort Worth, Tex. Colonel Dale, having sent the medal away, does not remember the first name of Captain Durrett.

This morning, however, he received from Mr. Mengel a letter of thanks. He says in the letter that he knows the Durrett family well, and that Captain Durrett, the man to whom the medal belongs, was a Kentuckian, having been reared at Hopkinsville, Ky.

He enlisted in the First Virginia Cavalry, afterwards the First West Virginia Cavalry, but his regiment was never in Kentucky.

In addition, the medal was not issued until after the war, and could not have been lost here during the war. It is the opinion of Mr. Mengel that Captain Durrett must have been traveling in this section and lost the medal.

His son now has it, however, and something more in regard to the interesting history of the little metal disc is expected in a short time. It is inferred from the letters received that Captain Durrett is still alive, although it is not so stated in so many words.

Mr. Mengel sent the boy who found the medal two dollars and says he is confident the son of the owner will be glad to show the appreciation he feels for the return of the medal, in a substantial way.

THE CONFERENCE BEGINS WEDNESDAY

Paducah Ministers Preach Sermons Before Leaving.

The Diocesan Council Meets Wednesday to Elect a New Bishop of Kentucky.

OTHER NEWSY CHURCH NOTES

Yesterday closed the conference year of the Southern Methodist churches in the city. While there is no anticipated changes here, none of the pastors having served their four year limit, the ministers generally leave prepared for any emergencies that may arise. This has been a successful year in the Methodist churches here and on the Paducah district, and Presiding Elder J. H. Roberts will carry a fine report to conference. It is the first year of Mr. Roberts on the district, and also of the Rev. W. A. Armstrong, at the Trimble street church and Rev. W. P. Hamilton of the Third Street Methodist church. Rev. T. J. Newell, of the Broadway Methodist church has been here two years and has had a wise and useful pastorate. Besides inaugurating a five year plan to pay the church debt a fine organ has been added to the church. The Rev. J. T. Owen in charge of Little's chapel, Le Center, and other churches in the vicinity has also done a good work. It is the general desire of all these congregations that their pastors be returned.

The Memphis conference will open on Wednesday at Jackson, Tenn., Bishop J. S. Key, of Fort Worth, Texas, presiding. It is the sixty-fifth annual session and promises to be a most harmonious one. Rev. T. J. Newell left today, being on a conference examining committee, the other ministers will probably not go before Tuesday night. Rev. J. H. Roberts has been quite ill since yesterday but will leave as soon as able to travel. Many lay delegates and visitors to the conference will go from here.

A Nashville dispatch says: "Local interest is centered in the election of Bishop of Kentucky in the Episcopal diocese in Louisville next Wednesday, as among the clergymen prominently mentioned upon whom the high office may fall, are Dr. William T. Manning, Vicar of St. Agnes' in New York, former rector of Christ's church in this city; Dr. James R. Wincheser, now of St. Louis, who preceded Dr. Manning here at the same church; Dr. Frederick F. Reese, who is its present rector, and Dr. J. N. McCormack, of Grand Rapids, who received and declined a call to Christ church last spring before Dr. Reese was chosen."

There were three very encouraging services at the Cumberland Presbyterian church yesterday. The Decision Day service in the Sunday school was marked by much interest. Evangelist Hendrick preached in the morning on "The Church," after which two members were received. The men's meeting in the afternoon was attended by eighty men, and the text was "Whoever a man soweth, shall he also reap." At the close nearly all present pledged themselves to live better lives. The audience at night overflowed the audience room, and the subject was "The Judgment." Mr. Carter sang a very impressive solo, "The Judgment Day." At the men's meeting Mr. Parker Chastaine, presided at the organ. Services at 3 p. m. and 7:30 p. m., each day during the week.

Rev. J. H. Roberts, presiding elder of the Paducah district, was too ill to fill his appointment at the Broadway Methodist church yesterday morning. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell preached both morning and night to large congregations. His sermon in the morning was on "True Gold" and was a fine and spiritual discourse. There were two additions to the church at this service. At night Dr. Newell delivered a strong talk on the work of the year to his people. At the close the entire congregation showed an earnest desire for his return.

THRILLING RIDE

Young Men Have Close Call Yesterday.

Dr. Frank Duley and William Hendrick In a Lively Runaway.

Dr. Frank Duley and Mr. William Hendrick were slightly injured in an accident yesterday afternoon late on South Sixth street, and the horse they were driving was injured and the buggy wrecked.

The boys secured a horse and buggy from Mr. Frank Clark, of Broad street, who works at the I. C. shops, and started out for a drive. On South Sixth street they encountered a car at which the horse shied. In attempting to handle the horse, the young man turned the buggy around and the horse then started again, throwing the young men out, turning the buggy over and running into a fence.

The horse's legs were skinned and it is thought the animal is permanently crippled. The young men escaped with a few slight scratches.

CONDUCTOR HURT

Claude Emerson Has a Foot Run Over by Car.

Two Toes Cut Off But Others May be Saved—Close Call.

Claude Emerson, a conductor in the employ of the Paducah City Railway Company, was injured yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock at the fountain avenue switch while stepping from one car to another.

The young man missed his hold and was thrown under the car. His right foot was run over by the wheel and two toes cut off. He was taken home on North Fourteenth street, where medical attention was secured.

The other toes were mashed but will not have to be amputated. The young man might have lost a foot but for his presence of mind in shoving himself away from the car after he had fallen.

SOMETHING DOING IN COUNTRY

The Editor Backs Down.

Coffeyville, (Kans.) Record: Yesterday evening as the shadows had begun to lengthen and indicate the close of another day, a woman, driving a prancing steed hitched to a rubber-tired buggy, came to our office. "I am Mrs. J. B. Snodgrass," she said, "and I notice that you said in your paper that I was posing as a clairvoyant." "Don't remember just what was said," we replied. Picking up the paper, the woman of the fast horses and pretty hounds pointed out the article that had made her angry. We had to own up to the corn. "I want you to understand that my husband is a drummer running out of Wichita. He supports me, and I do not have to be a clairvoyant to earn a living. The Charante papers have lied about me repeatedly. I have ridden astride all my life, and I intend to do so in the future. As for my hounds, I will say that I have had as many as fifteen at one time, and furthermore, I race them, and I also race horses. I am a great woman for out-of-door sports." We told her we thought she drove a nice horse, and she seemed pleased and went away.

Belleville, (Pa.) Times: The hustling borough of Belleville is not asleep. A new water line is the latest improvement. Belleville is now ready to receive congratulations on this added improvement. Think of the difference between drinking pure, sparkling, soft water and filthy well or stale cistern water; think of the difference between having the water always at hand ready to come forth at a turn of the spigot, and walking a block or two to wear out your neighbor's pump; think of the difference between having your wife lay awake at night in order that she may run you out at two minutes past 3 o'clock on Monday morning to carry wash water from your neighbor's pump, and the pleasure of snoozing on until daylight while your thrifty better half lets the water run into those once hated tubs; think of the pleasure it gives you to know that your town is rapidly moving onward and keeping up with the outside world; truly, Belleville deserves congratulation.

Wiles of a Circus Manager.

Clement Scott, the late dramatic critic, wrote verse in his leisure moments. By this verse he is not known, for his fame comes as one who spoke the final word concerning the merits of a play. He achieved a high reputation through his power of criticism and his authoritative expression of it. Of this he cared less than for his verses.

Frank Perley, the veteran circus manager, found out this with good results for himself. Perley had charge of "the greatest show on earth." It is of him that the story was told that he stammered so badly that he had to be the manager for Barnum and not for Forepaugh, as he could pronounce the first name and not the other.

Perley took "the greatest show" to England. It was an event. He determined that he would have a notice from Clement Scott, though his friends in London told him it was impossible. Scott would not condescend to notice a circus. Perley made a heavy wager that he would not only get a notice, but one in advance.

A woman told him that Scott wrote verses, and that he was fonder of his poetry than of his dramatic criticisms; that he had published them and sent copies to his friends.

After this information the circus manager called on the dramatic critic. He apologized for sending up his business card, saying that he had no personal ones with him. Scott was icy. Perley explained that he had not called on business, but wanted to see the man who had given him pleasure. Then he talked of Scott's verses with enthusiasm. He told him how as manager of a circus he traveled from one end of the world to another, and always carried Scott's verses with him. Scott was in a melting mood, and Perley recited his quatrains with fervor.

The next day the English public gasped with astonishment when it read a brilliant advance notice of America's "great circus" signed by Clement Scott.

A Kansas man saved a widow from drowning and was married to her within six weeks. One can't be too careful.

Theatrical Notes

J. D. Jeffries who was a member of the 1904 Clarksville K. I. T. base ball team, has signed a contract to join the Hemphy Dumpty company, which appeared here recently, and will join them at Evansville this week.

Mr. John B. Hobson, now of Jackson, Tenn., is in the city today on business. Mr. Hobson is lending the R. L. Burgess orchestra and band and Prof. Harry Farnham is also in Jackson playing in the orchestra. The people in Jackson seem to take a great interest in music. Mr. Hobson says, and there is much playing both opera house and general business.

Lover of good clean musical farce will have an evening at the Kentucky Thursday night when George Sidney and his clever company will be seen in the third edition of "Bugsy Izzy," which proved a perfect fit the past two seasons. That this style of offering is popular with the mass of present theatre goers there is no doubt. Almost entirely devoid of rhyme, reason or sense it presents for the hour that which the overworked brain calls for—laughter, music and slightly surroundings, vaudeville set to tuneful airs, pretty girls in pretty gowns, etc.

Go to the Theatre Public:

I take great pleasure in announcing to you that on Thursday night, November 17, Mr. George Sidney and a most excellent company of forty-five people, in "Busy Izzy," will play at The Kentucky, and I have made the prices from one dollar to twenty-five cents, on account of this being Mr. Sidney's first visit to Paducah.

This attraction is beyond doubt one of the very best musical farce comedies on the road, and every where they have appeared in the south have received one continuous ovation, and while this is only the third season of Mr. Sidney as a star, he also holds the records at Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Nashville, Memphis, Atlanta and New Orleans, and I personally guarantee that this is equally as good a performance as given here last season by Mr. Nat Willis, and you all remember what a great show that was.

Social Notes and About People.

Engagement Announced.
Sunday's Courier-Journal announces the engagement of Miss Jane Washington Helm of Louisville, to Mr. Eckstein Norton of New York.

Mr. Norton is a son of the late Mr. Eckstein Norton of New York, who formerly lived in Paducah, and has relatives in this city. Miss Helm belongs to a notable Kentucky family and is a social favorite in Louisville. No date has been set for the wedding.

Invitations Are Recalled.

On account of the recent bereavement in the family of the groom, the invitations to the reception following the Griffin-Lydon wedding are recalled. The wedding will take place as announced on Wednesday, November 16, at 3 p. m. and the couple will immediately return to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will Lydon, Sr., where they will make their home for a while.

To Organize Society.

The young people of the First Presbyterian church are requested to meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the church for the purpose of organizing a young people's society.

Change in Date.

NO DEVELOPMENTS.

There are no developments in the English-Hallam controversy over the new English theater at Henderson, Ky. A writ to eject Hallam comes up today for trial and Manager English has gone to Henderson to testify in it.

BUSY TIMES FOR THE FIRE LADDIES

Four Alarms in Twenty-Four Hours.

The Star Bakery Gilted by Fire at an Early Hour this Morning.

BLAZE AT THIRD AND OHIO

The firemen have had a busy time since Saturday, having answered four alarms. Only two of the fires amounted to much, one at the excelsior and mattress factory at Third and Ohio and the other at the Biederman Bakery on lower Kentucky.

Fire was discovered about 1 o'clock this morning in the Jake Biederman Grocery & Baking Co.'s bakery on Kentucky avenue near Second street, and when departments Nos. 2 and 3 arrived, the flames were coming through the front doors and upstairs portion of the building.

The fire burned furiously while it lasted and after about half an hour's hard work the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not before the entire stock had been ruined and the machines in the bakery department damaged slightly by water.

The fire originated in the middle part of the ground floor directly behind a partition dividing the first floor. The blaze was of incendiary origin, Mr. Kreutzer, who runs the bakery, thinks as the back door was found open by the firemen and Mr. Kreutzer left no fire about the building.

When the Biederman Company bought the bakery, it added about $900 worth of machines and the stock and machinery is valued at about $2,000. All the stock is ruined, a portion of which is 100 barrels of flour, and the damage will amount to about $1,500 on the stock and machines. The building is badly damaged and this is also insured.

The total amount of insurance on stock and machines is about $2,000 and will cover the loss. The building, however, will have to be rebuilt inside which will cost a great deal.

Mr. Kreutzer stated this morning that he would be ready for business again by tomorrow, he thought, as he could get enough machines in order to do his work and supply the trade.

A peculiar feature of the fire was that a big can of gasoline was in the midst of the flames, and although the spot was melted off by the heat, the gasoline did not explode, but was found as good as ever this morning.

The mattress and excelsior factory of Messrs. Robert McMurtrie and Ned Woolfolk, at Third and Ohio streets, burned Saturday night with a loss of about $900, it is estimated, with no insurance. The fire originated in the excelsior department in the rear of the building, which is a wooden one story affair, and spread rapidly.

The firemen made a good run and after half an hour's work, had the fire out but not until the machinery and stock, except a few bundles of ticking were destroyed. No insurance was carried as it is impossible to secure it in Paducah on such classes of risk. The young men will start up again, it is stated, in a few weeks, being able to use part of the machines used in the manufacture of excelsior.

The fire departments were late Saturday called to the residence of Mrs. M. Kahn, at Ninth and Monroe streets, to extinguish a blaze in the stable and buggy house. The firemen did good work and saved the Paducah Brewing Company's bottling department. The total damage was only about $100.

TO OUR PATRONS.

Having had the misfortune to lose our bakery by fire Sunday night, we would like for our patrons to bear with us until tomorrow evening, and we will deliver and have bread at all of our stores as usual. Hoping to receive the patronage as heretofore, I remain FRED KREUTZER, Manager Jake Biederman Grocery and Baking Co.

THEY FOUGHT SOME

LIVELY FIGHT NEAR GRAHAMVILLE THIS MORNING.

According to reports from Grahamville, this county, Col. Sam Billington, a well known resident with many friends in Paducah and Joe Dance, a negro, living on the Billington place, had a fight in which the negro was getting decidedly the worst of it and might have been killed, when they were separated.

Gentlemen from there later in the day say that as near as can be learned Col. Billington and Dance were walking down the road toward Grahamville when they fell out over a settlement, and the negro seized a piece of fence rail. Col. Billington did likewise and managed to knock down his antagonist. He was on top handling him pretty roughly when persons happened to come along and separated them.

A telephone message this afternoon stated that both were badly bruised, but neither was seriously hurt.

BUNGED UP
AND BEATEN—STORY OF THE CAIRO TRIP SATURDAY.
The local football team was badly defeated at Cairo Saturday by the high school team there by a score of 22 to 0, only the first half being played. Three of the Paducah boys were hurt, Carl Leigh, broken collar bone, Clifford Reddick, fractured arm and Grover Burns, broken nose.
The Paducah boys were simply too light for the Cairo boys, most of whom are strong, husky fellows.
The high school girls, of Paducah, however easily won the basketball game, which was pulled off first, defeating the Cairo girls by a score of 11 to 2.

AN OBJECT LESSON

In a Restaurant.

A physician puts the query. Have you never noticed in any large restaurant at lunch or dinner time the large number of hearty, vigorous old men at the tables; men whose ages run from sixty to eighty years; many of them bald and all perhaps gray but none of them feeble or senile?

Perhaps the spectacle is so common as to have escaped your observation or comment, but nevertheless it is an object lesson which means something.

If you will notice what these hearty old fellows are eating, you will observe that they are not munching bran crackers nor gingerly picking their way through a menu card of new fangled health foods; on the contrary, they seem to prefer a juicy roast of beef, a properly turned loin of mutton, and even the deadly broiled lobster is not altogether ignored.

The point of all this is that a vigorous old age depends upon good digestion and plenty of wholesome food and not upon dieting and an endeavor to live upon bran crackers.

There is a certain class of food cranks who seem to believe that meat, coffee and many other good things are rank poisons, but these cadaverous sickly looking individuals are a walking condemnation of their own theories.

The matter in a nutshell is that if the stomach secretes the natural digestive juices in sufficient quantity, any wholesome food will be promptly digested; if the stomach does not do so, and certain foods cause distress, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal will remove all difficulty, because they supply just what every weak stomach lacks, pepsin, hydro-chloric acid, diastase and nux.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not act upon the bowels, and in fact are not strictly a medicine, as they act almost entirely upon the food eaten, digesting it thoroughly and thus giving the stomach a much needed rest and an appetite for the next meal.

Of the people who travel, nine out of ten use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, knowing them to be perfectly safe to use at any time, and also having found out by experience that they are a safeguard against indigestion in any form, and eating as they have to, at all hours and all kinds of food, the traveling public for years have pinned their faith to Stuart's Tablets.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full-sized packages and any druggist from Maine to California, if his opinion were asked, will say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most popular and successful remedy for any stomach trouble.

Porto Rico Taking on the American Spirit—A Collective Exhibit of the Island's Best Products—Figures to Show the Possibilities—Sugar Production Has Doubled Since American Occupation—Florida Had a Narrow Escape, but a Newspaper Saved the Day by Making an Exhibit of the Fruits of the State—Some New Things in Fruits—The Gem State and Some of Her Gems in the Palace of Mines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNETT.]

Porto Rico is proving herself to be a very lively part of the United States, and the main purpose of the island exhibit in block 18 of the Palace of Agriculture is to show her enterprise and her appreciation of the opportunities which annexation to the United States has brought.

It is interesting to know, for example, that so soon since annexation the production of sugar has doubled, and it must be assumed that all other lines of business are looking up. They did not dare to look up in the dark days of the past. Porto Rico wants just what most of us seem to be wanting—namely, capital. We all think we could do so much if we only had capital to hire somebody else to do what we ought to do ourselves. What most of us need is energy and a little admixture of courage. Energy and courage and leadership (leadership is an element of courage) make capital. They are the best capital.

These, I think, are what Porto Rico is really acquiring, and they will flourish under stable laws amid productive lands.

Porto Rico sugar is protected by a duty of $1.08 per 100 pounds, 96 test, or $33.06 per ton. Notwithstanding the crop has doubled since American occupation, we are told that lands are available for two or three times the present output. Sugar mill owners are replacing the old machinery with modern equipment which secures a more complete extraction of the juices of the cane. At least 25 per cent of the former cost is saved by the new processes. The new plan is to have large factories where the farmers may sell their cane direct rather than to attempt to extract the sugar themselves.

One can hardly believe that an acre of ground will yield fifty tons of cane, but such is the declaration of those in charge of the Porto Rican exhibit. Ten per cent of the cane is extractable sugar, so that an acre would produce five tons of sugar worth $80 a ton, or $400 for the acre. The manufacturer kindly allows the farmer half, or $200. It costs $50 to $60 to bring an acre of new cane to the cutting state, but one planting suffices for several years, the subsequent years costing not to exceed $15 to $20 an acre. In districts where sugar factories are not yet established sugar land is said to be available at $50 to $100 an acre.

Porto Ricans regret that the rice lands of the island are not being made to produce at least sufficient for the island demands, but the people are still spending $2,000,000 a year for Louisiana rice. A duty of 2 cents a pound is imposed on foreign rice, and the Louisiana growers are happier to the extent of two millions a year.

If all that is said of Porto Rico is gospel accuracy the island is one of the paradises that those who seek big profits are anxious to find. It is asserted by the Porto Rico commission that oranges can be produced and placed in the Atlantic coast markets at 15 to 20 cents per crate against 90 cents a crate for California fruit, while land for oranges can be found for $10 to $20 per acre against several hundred per acre in California.

Tobacco, coffee and cotton are other important crops in Porto Rico. The lands for these crops are in the interior. But coffee is not a protected crop, and Porto Rico is obliged to meet the competition of all coffee producing countries. The quality of the cotton from the island is claimed to be of the best. But matters of quality in all things that relate to Porto Rico may be studied best in the fine collective exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture. Here you may note what the island offers in all the improvements and conveniences known to civilization.

It has been an unhappy experience for Floridians to come to the world's fair and find that the state has no official part in this great festival of peace and progress of the world. Only for the enterprise of one of the leading newspapers there would have been no evidence whatever that Florida still belonged to the sisterhood of states. No appropriation for an exhibit was made by the legislature, and the governor declined to appoint even an honorary commission to represent the commonwealth. But a newspaper jumped into the breach, as newspapers have a way of doing when emergency demands, and saved the day. In the Palace of Horticulture a booth contains a display of Florida fruits that stir one's interest, because it shows just how the fruits grow. You may not know that grapefruit, originally the pomelo, is so called because the fruit grows in bunches like grapes. Here is a bunch containing eighteen of them, each weighing a pound or more. The grapefruit is comparatively new in the markets. A few years ago none was offered in the northern markets. Now the public taste demands it, and last winter it sold in New York as high as $5 a box.

Here are Florida pineapples just as they grow on Florida plantations. These plantations or plantations are now inclosed on all sides except the southern and covered with slats three inches wide, three inches apart. This protection from north winds and excessive sun makes perfect pine such as bring best prices in markets of the north. Here, too, are coconuts still in the thick husk that protects the shell.

The most curious thing in Florida fruits is the Avocado pear, a name corrupted into alligator pear. It is perhaps the richest vegetable food known aside from the meats of nuts, and is sometimes called vegetable butter or midshipman's butter. The flesh of this pear has somewhat the consistency of a rich banana, but is oily and pleasant to the taste. A little salt adds to the flavor, and it makes a salad. Another salad fruit, to be eaten with mayonnaise dressing, is the pink shaddock, a hybrid fruit. Here is a specimen twenty-seven inches in circumference. If you have any curiosity to see how the dates of commerce are grown step in here on any date and look at them.

A persimmon without a pucker is among the latest of Florida fruits, but by no means new. It is the red Japanese persimmon that looks like a smooth tomato, being a little stronger in color and much heavier for the size. Lemons are displayed as big as a quart bowl. The lands of southern Florida are gradually coming under cultivation for all these valuable fruits.

The world would be much bewildered if Idaho could have her way. Long ago she assumed the title of the Gem State, but its full meaning has yet dawned upon the public. Idaho has untold wealth of gems, and they are best displayed in the mineral exhibit in the Palace of Mines and Metallurgy at the world's fair. Here you may see the beautiful fire opals of every degree of flaming beauty, the topazes from the white and smoky to the golden yellow and deep amber, gems of great brilliance and highly prized. Idaho can promise you a garnet with many facets to catch the eye with its glistening or a sapphire with its incomparable flashes of blue and keep the promise. These are her best jewels, but she has many others that find favor and will help to fill the world with pretty things. One county bears the honor of supplying nearly all the gems of the state. It is on the Montana border and the name is Lemhi. In the hills and mountains of Lemhi county the store of precious stones is beyond estimate.

DAVIS' OLD DESK.

Why Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Preferred It to New One.

"Attachments for old friends and familiar surroundings are strong in ex-Senator Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, candidate for the vice presidency on the Democratic ticket," said a gentleman to a reporter of the Baltimore Sun. "When he was president of the Davis Coal and Coke company the offices were removed from German street to palatial quarters in the Maryland Trust company's building. The moving was done in the absence of Mr. Davis, and to make the interior fittings agree with the up to date quarters new furniture and desks were installed. Among the discarded furniture was an old desk which Mr. Davis had used for years. A secondhand furniture dealer gave $2.50 for it.

When Mr. Davis made his first visit to the new offices he asked for his desk, and the clerks pointed proudly to a piece of furniture which was an item of $75 on the bills paid for the refurnishing of the new offices. Mr. Davis was not at home at the up to date desk. He asked where his old one was. A clerk said it had been sold to a secondhand furniture dealer. Mr. Davis made the request that it be returned, as he felt very much attached to it. It was but a few minutes before one of the clerks was in the shop of the secondhand man almost out of wind, asking him if he had disposed of the desk he had sold him a few days ago for $2.50. Luckily it was on hand. What did the shopkeeper want for it? Ten dollars was his demand. The price was paid and the desk returned to Mr. Davis' place in the office. It is thought the desk went with the offices to the Continental building and was destroyed in the fire."

Hosiery Fad of Co-eds.
College spirit among the co-eds has resulted in the Lawrence college maidens wearing one blue stocking and one white one, the colors of the college, says a special dispatch from Appleton, Wis. This fad was introduced by two Milwaukee girls.

Where English Is Spoken.
[A crusade has been started in Paris against the use of foreign words, especially English, in French.]
I'd never been in France before or heard the natives speak. And so I thought I'd run across and spend a quiet week.

I saw a Frenchman standing near on landing at the dock.
"Quelle heure est-il, monsieur?" I asked.
He answered, "Fiv' o'clock."

Down in the Bois I found a crowd Collected in a batch.
I asked them, "Qu'est que c'est que ça?"
They told me, "Football match."

They've "cricket records," "tennis," "golf" and "rowing." "Turf" and "hockey."
"Fuddocks" and "bookmakers" and "bets,"
The "trainer" and the "jockey."

And after staying just a week—
Of this I've made a note—
The only words of French I've learned
Are "chic" and "table d'hôte."

Tree Planting on Texas Plains.

(From the Galveston News.)

The Fort Worth and Denver railroad is doing a good many good things for the Panhandle country. Not the least promising of these is its effort to promote the growth of forest trees upon the plains. The prospective benefits are several. The trees will furnish firewood and fence posts, and it is believed they will promote a more even distribution of rainfall, lower the temperature of the some time hot winds, and protect the crops from such winds. More than 15,000 trees were planted in 1903, very nearly all of them being of the black locust species. The benefits are not altogether prospective. One of the tree planters, A. Finsterwald, of Mobeetie, reports that for three years past he has been getting fence posts from seedlings planted seven years ago; that during this time he has got sufficient posts to keep his fences in repair and to build fourteen miles of new fence. It looks very much as if this tree planting propaganda would result in a beneficial revolution in the Panhandle country, greatly increasing its agricultural possibilities.

It is difficult to recognize a pair of well-turned ankles at the street crossing, although you may have seen a great deal of them at the sea shore.

REACHING THE SPOT.

It can Be Done, So Scores of Paducah Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—got at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Mrs. E. B. Barnard, residing at 1608 Broadway, says: "My husband had to give up the grocery business on account of so much sickness in the family, and I believe for the last six years I have hardly seen a well day until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at DuBoise, Kolb & Co's drug store. I heard of them and knew of their benefiting others right here in Paducah so I made up my mind to try them. My son and I each used a box and we soon found they were just the remedy we needed for we were both troubled with kidney ailments. The lameness left my back entirely and the rheumatism with which I have been afflicted was much improved. We can both highly endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a kidney remedy of great merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

....To a Rule

[Original.]

How did I become a barrister in England? That's a secret, but since you are my son I will tell you. The story illustrates how a man must take risks in his decisions, but I believe it is always safer to act from conscientious motives.

Soon after I was admitted to practice in Chicago one Christopher Rowan was accused of murder. I had a fancy for criminal practice and took his case; but, despite my best efforts, he was convicted on circumstantial evidence. I was not only convinced from the man's manner that he was innocent, but he told me certain facts, which I was unable to get before the jury, that confirmed me in my opinion.

I secured a stay of proceedings and in one way or another delayed the execution, but finally there was nothing more to do for him, and I saw the day near at hand when he would have to swing. The matter had a terrible effect upon me, not doubting, as I have said, that the man was innocent.

A few weeks before the execution a letter came from him from a distant part of the world. The sheriff took possession of it and instead of giving it to the condemned sent it to me. It contained official information that Rowan, through the death of a cousin, had fallen heir to an entailed estate worth nearly a million. It was in itself proof that the man about to die came of an excellent family. This he had told me, but hoped that if he died on the gallows the matter might escape the notice of his relatives.

For awhile I was in a quandary; then, suddenly coming to a resolution, I called a cab and hurried to the jail to deliver the letter to its owner. I was not surprised that it did not have any very great effect upon him. The truth is he was stunned by his misfortune and the near approach of death, which he had for some time considered inevitable.

Instead of returning to my office I went to my room—I was then a bachelor—and, locking myself in, considered what I would do. In an hour I had made up my mind to use what money was necessary to save the man's life, though it must be applied illegally. I cabbed in Rowan's name to know how much I might draw on the estate, and a goodly sum was named. Then I told Rowan of my plan, and he signed a draft.

In due time the prisoner was put through the process, or, rather, an appearance of the process, the law had directed. The newspapers told of the brave manner in which the prisoner had met his death, though he had refused spiritual consolation. The name was spelled (as he had given it when arrested) Rowan, so that his relatives might not know of his fate. The coroner pronounced him dead, and his body was turned over at my request to me for burial. Instead of burying it I sent it in the guise of a negro to New York, where it sailed alive for Liverpool.

Rowan before leaving offered me my portion of his estate that I would accept, but I declined to take a penny. After his arrival in London he wrote me renewing the offer. I still declined. He made me different propositions at different times, but I declined them all. Meanwhile he had entered various enterprises and doubled his capital. Finally he wrote me that if I would come to London and practice he would see that I had the most lucrative clients. It was ten years after I had been the means of saving him from an ignominious death that I went to London and consented to act as his and his friends' attorney. In time I became a barrister.

I have left out the most important part of the story? How did I contrive Rowan's flight, the sham hanging and all that? Money, my dear boy; money. It will accomplish anything. We don't need to go to Russia for corruption; there is plenty of it in the United States. But it costs a big sum. I paid it all to one man in gold—$300,000—though I didn't pay more than a sixth of this at the time of the hanging, and the go between paid all the rest. Besides the sheriff, those in attendance and the coroner it was necessary to give plenty of hush money to any one who might have the slightest suspicion.

How did they fool those whose duty it was to see the man executed? Come here. The evidence has been in this safe ever since you were born. Do you see this rope loop? It fitted around Rowan's chest. I'll put it on and show you how it worked. I have no horror of it; it saved a life instead of taking one. You see it passes across the chest and under the arms. Higher, where the ends join, is a hook, small, but strong. On the hangman's rope close to the knot was a little loop made of a hundred fine steel wires, and just before the condemned was swung off the hook was pulled up under the coat collar and fastened to the steel loop. Hook and loop were lost in the hangman's knot behind the ear and the victim's coat collar.

Have I ever regretted my act? Never. In a sense I did wrong to work a right, and I don't believe in the principle of doing wrong that right may come. But an isolated case like this doesn't make a rule; it is simply an exception to a rule.

Then he told her as gently as he could. One of Cornwallis' messengers had brought out the report that one Louis Armand, captured two days before, was under condemnation in Yorktown to die that night at sunset.

She heard him with wide, terror-struck eyes. "To die!" she cried. "He was captured then. Let them believe what they may, he is a Continental officer—a prisoner of war! They cannot kill him. Why, they are negotiating now for his surrender! I shall go to General Washington. He will not let them!"

He shook his head very gravely. "Anne," he said, "my poor, dear child! The general officers of the American line know. They would not interfere. Jarrat's devilry has won at last. He sent a letter out of Yorktown three days ago to General Hazen, denouncing Colonel Armand."

CHAPTER XIX.

IN little time Anne was mounted on her horse and rode to the field of Yorktown, where the allied armies lay awaiting the outcome of that day of truce.

Joy rested over all the wide camps, but there was none in her heart. She was conscious only of a dreadful, numbing ache and a desperate necessity to see him once more—to tell him. She had no further plan. The note she carried from Henry brought her without delay to the officer of the day, and the personal request it contained was not to be denied.

The sun was low when she passed the inner works and entered Yorktown between battered walls and gouged earth mounds which testified to the fierceness of the fire rained upon the British by Ferguson's and Mather's batteries. All about her were honeycombed streets cluttered with rich furniture, empty knapsacks, books, fragments of shells, iron caltrops, carcasses of men and horses, and horrors beyond description.

But she scarcely saw them. He was to die this night—this night—and the time was so pitifully short. The years he had fought must count for naught—all vanished before the weight of that one long-passed Philadelphia afternoon. What should have been his hour of triumph had become his hour of shame. And it was by her act!

The thought made her shudder as if with an ague. It seemed to her that God must have been blotted from the heavens—that there was no hope, no good, nothing but a colossal fate wheel which was rolling to crush Armand and her.

Where were the prisoners kept? She asked some one, who directed her to a barracks at the northern end of the town. Thither she pushed her way over foul refuse heaps and fetid ditches, through crowds of soldiers shouting loathsome doggerel, who jeered and caught at her, and past gold braided officers who cursed them savagely and made place. She noted none of these.

At the barracks entrance she met her first rebuff when a sentry barred her way. "You have a prisoner," she explained, her breath fluttering. "His name is Armand. I would see him."

He answered only with an uncompromising stare. As he turned she tried to pass through, but he thrust his musket across the door, with an angry Hessian grunt. A knot of soldiers tossed some German phrases to him from behind her, and she snatched at them stolidly over her head.

Then she became aware of a more kindly military face in the opening behind him. A hand touched the Hessian's shoulder; he faced about, saluted and moved off, and the knot of stragglers melted away.

"I am Colonel Dundas," stated the officer in the doorway. "Have you permission to see the prisoner?"

"No," she replied pathetically. "This is a special order. None save the commander in chief can give such leave."

She sat down on the stone step, her eyes half closed, shaken by a dry sob. Not even to see him! It was ghastly!

Colonel Dundas was struck with her pallor. He was a gentleman and humane. "The prisoner who dies tonight is not under a recent condemnation, mistress," he said not unkindly. "And 'tis said he now holds the rank of colonel in the American army. Mayhap the Continentals will yet make protest."

She looked up with wide, miserable eyes. How could she explain it all to him? "There is no time—no time," she said with heavy lips.

He had turned away, but her voice recalled him. "Where is Cornwallis' headquarters? Tell me, quick."

"In the Nelson mansion," he answered. "Hope not on that, though. Surrender is deliberated, and the earl is under great strain."

"But he will at least see me," she said. He shook his head doubtfully. "You have still an hour."

Still an hour! How horrible to measure a life by minutes! Colonel Dundas watched her go with a frown of pity. War seemed more than stern to him at that moment.

Then he entered the door and sent for a chaplain to hold himself in readiness.

A sickness had climbed into Anne's throat before she reached the house. For a time she got no farther than the outer door. At length an officer, doubtless by reason of her evident distress, gave her a chair in what had been the drawing room. Scores of times she had sat in that selfsame room as gay as any guest. That she should be there now on such an errand seemed some hideous mockery of truth.

The British commander had before him General Washington's ultimatum as to terms of surrender—could see no one. So they told her, but she would not be satisfied. Her errand was a matter of life and death—concerned an execution within an hour. Twice the officer who had given her the chair went into the inner room. The second time he returned with a flush of mortification on his face.

"I dare not ask again," he told her. She came out into the street at last when the sun was gathering crimson to its fall, her whole mind numbed, her body wrenching with nervous agony and with bruised shadows beneath her burning eyes. Instinctively she started in the direction of the barracks, and as she walked with uncertain footsteps her fingers went twisting a slip of paper they found in the pocket of her gown. Some soldiers were boiling a pot over a street fire of split boards, and as she passed them with the look of a sleepwalker she drew the paper out and looked at it.

Instantly a great thrill went through her to the tips of her fingers, and her cheeks rushed into flame. It was the lasty scrawl given her at Gladden Hall by Lord Cornwallis the day she had gone to him for John the Baptist. This is what she read:

My Dear Dundas—I suppose we must let the lady have her prisoner. Give us the papers out.

She stood still a moment, afraid of the beating of her heart, cherishing a thought that was like a white coal in her brain. If she could! The soldiers were looking at her curiously, for women were rare in the town. If she could!

Then, clasping the paper to her breast, she ran with winged feet toward the barracks. As she neared the river bank the sun was a half disk of deep orange red.

The Hessian sentry was still on guard. But he had seen his colonel's previous greeting, and as she hastened up the steps he threw the door wide, and she ran through the corridor straight into Dundas' presence. He was sitting at his table, and a subaltern had just entered for instructions.

"I have it! I have it!" she cried and laughed—laughed joyfully with her heart quaking and fainting.

"You have it? I am glad," Dundas reached for the paper and read it, smiling. "General Cornwallis is surely occupied. He has even forgot to date it. However!" He struck a bell. "Sergeant, tell Major Needham his file will not be required tonight, and bring the prisoner Armand, fully clothed, to me."

She scarce heard what followed save to realize in a vague way that he was marveling at her miracle. But everything else vanished as Armand entered the room.

"Prisoner," Colonel Dundas announced. "I am ordered to set you at liberty. You owe so much clemency to this lady, who has interceded with Lord Cornwallis."

Armand had been pale when he entered. Having seen her, his face had grown quite colorless. He stood wordless, his shoulders lifting in a long, deep drawn breath.

"Here is a double pass," continued Dundas. "That, I believe, ends my hospitality." He rose and bowed, while the sergeant opened the door, and the two passed out into the noisome, brawling street.

"I am ordered to set you at liberty."

The sun had set—the sky's golden ivory still moist for the first stroke of night's soft brush to paint in the stars.

A thin new moon tilted over the musty purple of the river. Reaction was come. She shivered again and put out a hand toward him.

"Speak to me," she whispered. "Rather," he said, "tell me at what house I can safely leave you."

"Leave me?" "Aye. You have made me take my life at your hand. Spare me further humiliation if you can."

She had not thought of this emergency. Delay would spoil all. And even if he reached the American lines—ah, none knew better than she why he should not go there!

"I am in danger," she invented breathlessly. "In great danger—I cannot explain now—here in Yorktown. I have not a friend within the walls, no spot where I can be safe. I ask you to take me away."

"Let us go, then, toward the bastions," he said, turning. "No, no!" She caught at his arm. "I cannot go into the American camp. Think you, 'tis night. I must get to Gladden Hall. See—here is the river. 'Tis but a few miles. Could you row me so far, think you, against the current?"

He did not reply, but led the way to a path which zigzagged down the bluff to the river. It was the spot where they had first met. Then the long stretch had bristled with shipping; now the wharfs had been pulled up to build rotted lean-tos, the bank was hollowed with dugout shelters from the shells, wherein wounded soldiers played at cards by new lit candles, and the water's edge was a jumble of overwrecked barges and periaugers and a tumbledown of shouts and wranglings. Along the line of craft, where the tide scum shuddered in with stragglers of seaweed and chunks of wreckage, sentries patrolled conscientiously with keen outlook for river deserters.

Armand chose a narrow skiff, found two oars for it and placed her in the stern as a lieutenant examined their pass. Then, with a strong shove, he sent the boat darting out on to the broad, smooth, unrippling current.

It had scarce drawn well away when a figure blundered down the bank. "Call that boat in," he cried, "or have the sentries fire on it! That man's name is Armand. He is an escaping prisoner."

"Oh, no, Captain Jarrat," returned the lieutenant composedly. "You have the name all right, but he had a pass signed by Lieutenant Colonel Dundas. I know the signature well enough. This siege routine is playing the devil with your nerves, captain."

"A pass!" shouted Jarrat frantically. "By the ghost!" and went up the bank on a run.

MAKING A REPUTATION

"Why, Mr. Peeks?" "Upon my word, Miss Winter!"

With the surprise was embarrassment on both sides. They had both been visitors in the city during the winter; had met; Mr. Peeks had proposed and had been refused. Miss Winter was romantic and wanted a daredevil. Mr. Peeks had no especial desire to break his neck or kill any one for Miss Winter, though he loved her. Now they had met at the seashore. He joined her and walked beside her.

"Fate seems inclined to throw us together," he remarked. "After all, fate knows what's best for us."

"I know better than fate," she replied.

"In respect to who shall be your husband?"

"I will marry no man who will not dare and do for me before I consent to be his wife. If he will not before marriage, I cannot expect it of him afterward."

"Will you put him to a test?"

"Possibly." "You say that you will only marry a man who will dare and do for you; that you will test him and find out for yourself if he is that kind of a man. It all seems very plain, but you may be deceived after all."

"I don't mean that I will not marry any except one who would swim in dangerous water to pluck me a pond lily. My fancy is one who has that cool assurance we so often see in heroes in the theater, one who can look down the muzzle of a revolver and crack jokes with the enemy who points it at a man of assurance."

"Such situations are not to be called up at will, except in plays."

"Oh, I can tell the kind of a man I mean very easily."

They were strolling on an avenue lined on either side with cottages. The sun shone down upon these homes by the sea, glistening from their roofs and the vines which in many cases covered them. Miss Winter was without parasol, without hat. She loved the sunshine and would not interfere with its kissing her cheek.

"What a dainty little cottage," she exclaimed as they approached one of the residences, "and what a pleasant outlook there must be from that window, with its pretty white curtains, in the peak of the roof. See the vase of roses standing on the sill."

"Would you like one of those roses?"

Miss Winter cast a quick side glance at her companion.

"I rather think I would," she said. "Very well, you shall have it if it costs me my life to get it."

Mr. Peeks pushed on to the gate, walked rapidly up the walk to the piazza and, boldly opening the door, walked into the house. Miss Winter stood still, lost in admiration at the man's assurance. In a few minutes Peeks appeared at the window and was about to grasp a rose from the vase when he was suddenly drawn back violently. Then there was an occasional appearance within the room of Mr. Peeks sparring with a young man.

The enemy looked younger and smaller than Peeks, who was evidently getting the best of him. At last Peeks dragged him to the window, where he held him with one arm around his chest while he carefully removed the vase with the other, then forced the man out of the window and bed him suspended above the turf far below.

"Shall I drop him?" he called to Miss Winter.

"No; for heaven's sake, no!"

"I'll do it for your sake."

"For my sake stop. Come back here."

"Just as you wish."

He pulled the young man in the window, then seized a rose, and Miss Winter could hear the door slam. In another minute he came out of the front door and, joining Miss Winter, offered her the flower.

The young man in the room, frantic with rage, came to the window and shook his fist, muttering maledictions.

"Well, upon my word," said Miss Winter, aghast, "that's the most impudent thing I ever saw done. What will the people in the house think of you? And that poor boy! You ought to be ashamed of yourself. He was no match for you whatever. Do you think they'll have you arrested?"

"What care I? Have I not made a test for myself and won?"

Miss Winter turned her face away and sniffed the rose. No more marked test of assurance could have been devised nor carried out more successfully.

"Do you think he will follow you?" she asked, referring to the young man who had incurred such hard treatment.

"No. He's nothing but a boy. I take no credit for having worsted him. He doesn't want any more of it."

They walked on till they reached Miss Winter's hotel.

"I suppose I may call this evening?" said Peeks.

"Certainly."

Mr. Peeks called. He was really a very acceptable person, and now that he had fulfilled the conditions Miss Winter's romance had imposed there was no reason why she should not accept him, and she did so before he left her.

Mr. Peeks informed his fiancée that his mother was with him at the seashore. He would announce his engagement to her, and she would call the next day. Mrs. Peeks called, and when Miss Winter returned the call she drove up to the cottage where Mr. Peeks had proved his remarkable assurance. The young man he had trounced was his own brother.

Use Shoffner's Sure Cure

The Great Tonic and Blood Purifier—Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

It is a trite and true saying that the "blood is the life." Now where does the blood come from? Everybody knows, or should know, that it comes from the nutritive elements extracted by the stomach from the food we eat. If the digestive organs do not perform their functions by reason of disease germs, there is no nutrition extracted, and the food might better be thrown in the dump to decay and breed germs in the open air than to remain in the stomach and become a rotten, putrid mass, as it naturally does if there is no digestion. No disease germ can live and find lodgment in a human body that uses the Shoffner's Sure Cure. Price $1.00.

What People Say of the Shoffner's Sure Cure.

PADUCAH, Ky., March 5, 1903.

To Whom It May Concern: This is to certify that I was a sufferer with indigestion for five years and could get no relief until I bought one bottle of Shoffner's Sure Cure, and it helped me so much that I took six bottles. I have been sound and well, thanks to the Shoffner's Sure Cure.

MRS. JOHN SMEDLEY, 806 S. Third St.

This is to certify that I believe the Shoffner's Sure Cure saved my life. I was not able to sit up in bed when I began taking the remedy. I had such a severe cough I thought I had consumption. Physicians had given me up to die. After taking one bottle I was able to sit up some. After using five bottles I was fully restored to health. I cannot say enough in favor of this wonderful remedy for indigestion.

KENTUCKY NEWS TOLD IN PARAGRAPHS

TO TEST BEREIA CASE.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 14.—John G. Carlisle, former Secretary of the Treasury, has arrived in this city from Washington. He was met here by Guy W. Mallon, president of the Cincinnati Trust Company and a trustee of Berea College. Mr. Carlisle comes to Kentucky to appear as counsel for Berea College in the trial on an indictment for co-racial education.

At the last session of the Kentucky Legislature an act known as the Day bill, prohibiting co-racial education, was passed. An indictment of Berea College, which is attended by whites and blacks, followed in Madison county, in which it is located. The case will be called at Nicholasville Monday. It will be carried to the State Court of Appeals and then to the Supreme court.

Under the act the college, as an institution, the faculty and trustees and the students may be prosecuted. The present action is only against the institution, and will serve to test the constitutionality of the act.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.

Danville, Ky., Nov. 14.—Elijah Beard, a prominent farmer of Shelby County, met a horrible death while engaged at work in his grist mill. Beard was fixing a part of the machinery while it was in motion and his clothes caught in the large belt. Before he could be reached his body was carried round and round, the force of the machinery crushing it in a frightful manner. Mr. Beard was a member of the Christian church and had been a resident of Shelby City for forty years. A wife survives him.

BAD GANG BROKEN UP.

Somerset, Ky., Nov. 14.—A tragedy a little out of the usual order occurred at Sloan's Valley, on the Cincinnati Southern road, south of Somerset. John McKee, Anderson Freeman and Denny Haynes are what are known down the road as "bad boys from the Battle Branch." A band of gypsies was near the village. McKee, Freeman and Haynes visited the camp and raised a rough house. The gypsies took it seriously, and opened fire upon the party. McKee received two loads of bullets from a shotgun. Freeman caught two pistol bullets, and Haynes saved his skin by running away. One of the gypsies was slightly wounded. McKee and Freeman are badly hurt. The good citizens of that region are organized in an effort to break up lawlessness and illicit liquor vending. For this reason there will probably be no prosecution of the gypsies for their part in the little fray.

THIRD IN THIRTY YEARS.

Cadiz, Ky., Nov. 14.—W. R. Smith, the Republican nominee who was elected Jailor in this county Tuesday to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Allison Boyd, deceased, is the third Republican to have the honor of being elected to a county office of Trigg county in thirty years.

THE LOCAL COURTS
DRAGGING ALONG

Federal Court Meets a Week From Today.

Judge Sanders Had a Large Docket and Assessed Some Big Fines.

NEWS OF SMALLER COURTS

FEDERAL COURT DOCKET.

The regular November term of Federal court commences a week from today. It will be the first term of court held in the government building since the beginning of work on the addition. One of the most powerful reasons offered for the enlargement of the building was the inadequate court room, and Judge Evans, when he and his retinue take up their quarters in the court room Monday, they will find one of the largest and prettiest in the state.

The docket is as follows: Common Law Docket, Circuit Court:

Thomas A. Nevins vs. George Rock and others, continued at last term.

Frank Slaughter vs. N. O. & St. L. and J. R. Rork, continued at last term.

Z. T. Gatlin vs. George Gilbert and Henry Arenz, continued at last term.

Mary E. Clark vs. Illinois Central, continued at last term.

Albert Hibbs vs. Illinois Central, continued at last term.

Princeton Ice and Storage Company vs. Illinois Central, continued at last term.

L. J. Metcalfe and P. H. Darby vs. Illinois Central, continued at last term.

EQUITY DOCKET.

Arthur Y. Martin vs. Samuel Stark.

Altman and Taylor Company vs. W. O. Hargrove and others.
W. H. Mann vs. Marion Zino company.

DISTRICT COURT DOCKET.

United States vs. Sam Sweeney, indictment not executed.

United States vs. Mitt Cope, indicted and out on bond.

United States vs. E. D. Thompson and Robert Duncan, indicted and out on bond.

United States vs. H. B. Duncan, indicted and out on bond.

United States vs. Lindo Murphy, indicted and out on bond.

DOCKET IN ADMIRALTY.

Amon Price vs. Steamer Dick Clyde, continued from last term.

Jackson Foundry and Machine Co., vs. Steamer Mary Hill, settled and to be dismissed.

NEW CASES.

The new cases on this docket show the plaintiffs against the Steamer Chattanooga, which has been sold and proceeds prorated to satisfy the judgments as far as possible: City National Bank of Paducah, Brookport, Ill., National Bank, Fowler-Wolfe Sheet Metal Works, Fowler, Crum-baugn & Company, J. T. Reeder, Jackson Foundry and Machine Company, St. Bernard Mining Company, Paducah Marine Railway Company, George Gustler, Conway Garden, J. R. Smith and Son.

PETITION DISMISSED.

The petition of Chas. T. Graham, of Paducah, to force J. E. English into bankruptcy, was dismissed in Louisville Saturday by Judge Evans, in federal court.

Quarterly Court.

County Judge R. T. Lightfoot has under advisement a very peculiar case.

It is the case of K. P. Dangley against Hawkins & Son, for $69 for a bill of hay.

The defendants brought in a counter claim of $233 and the jurisdiction of the court was questioned and action deferred.

Dangley claims to have sold the defendants a certain amount of hay and failed to receive a balance of $69 on the bill. He sued to recover it and the defense claimed that Dangley furnished an inferior quality of hay and damaged them to the sum of $233. "As cases involving more than $200 can not be tried in quarterly court, the matter will probably be taken to circuit court."

PROPERTY NEAR STILES SOLD.

Master Commissioner Reed today sold a piece of ground located near Stiles in the action of Martin Snyder, trustee, against G. B. Smith. It brought $920 and was bought by Attorney D. H. Hughes for the trustee.

The judgment in the case of the Barton Parker Mfg Co., against C. O. Ripley was set aside and the case set for immediate trial.

COUNTY COURT.

Judge R. T. Lightfoot this morning held a short session of county court.

The principal thing he did was to appoint the county tax book supervisors as follows: Messrs. John Roof, Harry Savage, Dick Davis, J. D. Berryman, George Bondurant, Z. T. Cockrell, J. H. Massie, Evan Jett and S. H. Harkey.

In the road case where the county is attempting to get service on the I. C. or condemnation proceedings, a motion to quash the summons served on Agent Donovan was sustained. The O. St. L. & N. O. R. R. is the defendant and it is claimed has no agent here. The summons will be sent to Louisville.

The summons in the case against the Bell Telephone Company were also quashed. It is alleged the company has no agent and it will have to be sent to Nashville.

Summons on Fayette Bennett and Major Word, property owners on the road running from the Woodville to the Grahamville road, were issued. Harvey Johnson, colored, age 37, of the city and Laura Bishop, of the city, age 26, colored, have been licensed to wed. It will make the first marriage of both.

The county wants to open the road. Frank Diegel was allowed $136.80 for distributing the ballot boxes over the county, repairing some and making five new booths.

E. B. Johnson was allowed $75 for his salary as road supervisor. Henry Mammen was allowed a bill of $14.25 for work done for the county.

POLICE COURT.

Tom Bush, colored, hit Lizzie Owen, colored, over the head with a big stick last night and the woman went to the residence of Officer Aaron Hurley, who was taking his vacation, and asked for protection and that the man be arrested.

Officer Hurley put on his coat and went out after Bush. He arrested the man and this morning Judge Sanders fined him $100 and costs.

Frank Minor, colored, who slashed Lillie Lee, colored, with a buggy whip several weeks ago, surrendered and was this morning fined $100 and costs.

James Dike, a stranger, was fined $1 and costs for being drunk and disorderly.

John Quinn was fined $1 and costs for being drunk and disorderly.

Two sows were ordered sold to pay a fine assessed for running at large on the streets.

Fred Minnick, white, a stranger, was dismissed of the charge of drunkenness.

The breach of the peace case against J. K. Garrett, white, was left open.

Robert Bell was fined $40 and costs for carrying a concealed weapon, and given 30 days in jail. He is in addition charged with cutting Jim Paschal, colored, and this case was continued.

The case of Lydia Carroll, white, charged with stealing $65 from Freddie Yopp, a hot tamale dealer, was left open. Yopp swears he saw her steal his pocket book and run.

The case against Jim Hale, colored, charged with stealing some money from Barney Levitan was tried and the boy dismissed.

Frank Reynolds, colored, was charged with presenting a pistol, and also a breach of the peace and was dismissed in both cases.

WOOD JONES

ARRESTED TODAY ON A CHARGE OF ROBBERY.

Wood Jones, white, was arrested this morning by Officers Brennan and Clark on a warrant charging grand larceny.

It is alleged that Jones some time ago "touched" C. L. Carman, of Mayfield, for $98 while the latter was intoxicated and not able to offer any resistance. Jones had been at large since and Carman will be sent for to testify against him. The case will be tried tomorrow morning, Carman having been notified to come to Paducah tomorrow morning on the accommodation train.

GAME LAW OUT

TOMORROW QUAIL MAY BE KILLED IN KENTUCKY.

Today the game law in Kentucky so far as quail is concerned expires, and tomorrow a large number of hunters will probably take to the field to bag Bob White. The birds are reported to be reasonably plentiful, and good sport is expected. The season closes again the last day of December.

Louisville, Nov. 14.—John Ruhl shot at his wife today and then killed himself. The couple had been married but a short time and quarreled. The woman is almost insane from the shock.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

Copyright, 1904, by Duncan M. Smith.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Some men do not steal umbrellas, because they never have a chance.

A man can never feel bad when he loses one trouble, because he knows there are more coming.

The Japanese have shattered another superstition by proving that it is possible to carry on a war without the aid of the Missouri mule.

While kind words cost no money, they sometimes encourage a man to strike you for a small loan.

A candidate is often judged by the dollars he doesn't keep.

Strange as it may seem, there is no proof that the plumbers are subsidized by the doctors.

The fortune teller who knows her business tells every woman caller that she would make a great hit on the stage.

When a mule kicks it may be an error of the heels and not of the heart.

Missed His Chance.

An ancient bachelor found at last a lady to his liking.

Without a shadow of a past. Tall, handsome, blond and striking.

His heart at sight of her would sink And then begin to flutter;

No wonder that he couldn't think Of just the words to utter.

Away from her he couldn't rest, So, when the shades were falling, He toggled out in his Sunday best And on the girl went calling.

He talked about the latest play And touched upon the weather, And wondered how 'twould seem if they Were sitting close together.

He wanted to propose that night, To see if he could get her, But thought it wouldn't seem just right The first time that he met her.

And so he took her little hand, And over it he bended, And to be back again he planned Before the week had ended.

He really felt he couldn't wait; He couldn't eat or slumber, But when he called to keep the date She'd moved and left no number.

The moral, which is somewhat crude, But fits for saint and sinner, Is, when you catch her in the mood, Don't leave before you win her.

Why There Is Nothing Doing.

Making bricks without straw is a light holiday task compared to making a campaign without an issue.

For some reason which a good guesser might divine the people absolutely refuse to get excited when there is nothing to get excited about.

People who would be willing to sit up nights to love their country in case of a necessity feel that they have done their whole duty when they take the time to vote, without rushing out to hear speakers who do not even pretend to believe that the candidate of the opposing party will steal sheep.

Surely it is better to deliberate by the fireside than on the street corners over such a grave and important matter as the election of a president, but who would have believed a few years ago that we would be able in the present generation to reach such a high degree of civilization?

Unequal Division.

Before we had the eight hour day They used to say, "Man works from sun till sun, But lovely woman toils ahead Until 'tis time to go to bed, And then she isn't done."

To Improve Her Chance.

"The fortune teller says I shall marry a rich man."

"Did she say whether he would be blind or not?"

Could Take a Few More.

"Is the standing army crowded?"

"Well, there is still standing room."

"But think how far it is from the seat of war!"

Hard to Teach.

Some by experience will learn, But that will not suffice, For some who have been married once, Must go and make it twice.

Opulent.

"Are Mary Ann's fadder rich?"

"Rich! I shud say! She chaws tree sticks o' gum at a time."

Preparation.

"Was he ready to die?"

"Yes; he had been married forty years."

PURCHASING PEARLS.

A man is here buying up the pearls found by mussel-shell dredgers in the Ohio river in this vicinity for an eastern house. He has a pretty fat roll in bank with which to do the buying, and will probably be here for several days, and then go on to some other locality where the dredgers make their headquarters.
